New Milk Strike Peace Plan Proposed

Union Given Settlement Proposal By D. C. Dairies

U. S. Mediator Calls Situation 'More Hopeful'. Parleys Continue Today

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A new proposal for settlement of the milk strike was made by the Washington dairies last night and taken under consideration by the union in negotiations at the Wardman Park Hotel.

The discussion was recessed at 12:55 a. m., to be resumed this morning at 10:30. Clyde M. Mills, special assistant to Cyrus S. Ching, head of the Federal Mediation Service, said when the session was adjourned:

"We are more encouraged with the situation than we have been for several days."

Mills and the other two Federal mediators said they had proposed several suggestions to both parties and asked them to consider them overnight.

Entrance of Mills into the milk negotiations yesterday was viewed as indicating that the Government takes a serious view of the milk drought caused by the strike of drivers. He recently was promoted to the key post of special assistant to Ching.

Mills has been specializing in the atomic energy management-labor disputes and in trouble-shooting.

To Extend Picketing

Mills entered the dispute talks at a time when both sides appeared to be anticipating a long strike. Union officials said that if the controversy were not settled by Monday morning, picketing would be extended to all nine dairies' their warehouses, and retail outlets.

Up to now the union—affiliated with the AFL Brotherhood of Teamsters—has limited picketing to the dairy plants of Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase, Wakefield and Harvey. The union has insisted it struck only these three dairies, and that its members were "locked out" by the other six members of the Milk Industry Committee: Model Farms, Embassy, Lucerne, Alexandria, Richfield and Thompson.

However, General Counsel Robert N. Denham, of the National Labor Relations Board, ruled Thursday that the union's strike against one member of the industry group was tantamount to a strike against them all, and rejected the "lockout" complaint.

1650 On the Lines

As a result of the ruling, union officials planned to order all 1650 of its members on the picket lines beginning Monday morning. The strategy, a union official said, calls for picketing of all Safeway stores because the Lucerne Milk Co. is a Safeway division. Such picketing would prevent members of other AFL Teamster Union locals from making any kind of deliveries whatsoever to the retail outlets, the dairy workers' union officials said.

The CIO Industrial Union Council of the District yesterday pledged "full support" to the AFL

3 Brothers, Aged 8, 4, 3, Die in Icebox

Three young brothers suffocated in an abandoned icebox in the backyard of their home on Fort Hunt rd., Tauxemont in Fairfax County yesterday.

They were Leon, 8; Wells jr., 4, and Ronnie Michael Proctor, 3, children of Wells Proctor, sr., 28, and his wife Hilda, 26.

Both the father, a Quartermaster Corps employe here, and the mother, laundry employe at the Alexandria Cleaners, were away at work at the time.

Mr. and Mrs. Proctor were admitted to Alexandria Hospital for treatment of hysteria and shock.

The children were found sitting with their knees drawn up in the ice compartment, 23 by 23 by 23 inches.

Two shoes were found in the icebox near the bodies. One shoe was Leon's, the other had come off a foot of Wells.

Police theorized the shoes may have fallen off as the lads kicked against the inside of the ice compartment to attract attention.

Or maybe the older two boys deliberately took off a shoe, and hit against the wall of their prison in a vain effort to summon help.

Police Pvts. T. D. Thompson and Paul Dove pieced together this tragic sequence from the parents.

Mrs. Proctor regularly telephoned her home from work several times each day to make sure the youngsters were all right. She phoned at 9 a.m. and spoke to the oldest lad, Leon. He said everything was fine.

Again at noon Mrs. Proctor phoned. There was no answer. She tried several more times. Still no answer. She called her husband at work.

When there was still no answer, the father at 2 p.m. phoned Fair-

Murray Asks Million for CIO War Chest for Fall Campaigns

CIO President Philip Murray asked his political leaders yesterday to raise a one-million-dollar war chest to help elect pro-labor candidates to Congress this fall.

Jack Kroll, director of the CIO's Political Action Committee, said enemies of labor are spending "unlimited funds" to defeat candidates in sympathy with union legislative aims.

They spoke at a meeting of 350 CIO union presidents and PAC leaders who will direct the organization's drive to elect a pro-labor Congress next November.

Later, the delegates trouped to the White House garden, where President Truman, standing in a light rain, told them that they are doing a great political service for the country.

"Keep up the good work. Election day is the first Tuesday in November," the President said.

The President beamed when Kroll, in his introduction, declared that Mr. Truman is more popular politically today than ever before.

Although repeal of the Taft-Hartley law is one of organized labor's principal legislative demands, Murray laid additional stress on the issues of unemployment and social security.

Murray said about one million more persons have become unemployed each year since 1947. Unemployment insurance benefits average $21 a week for 26 weeks, he said, and after that "the worker can go to the poorhouse."

"Very few in Congress are willing to assume a position of leadership for the benefit of the aged and the unemployed. I don't know how labor is going to meet these problems when we have a Congress that is unwilling to rise and meet its responsibilities."

Murray said that if Congress refuses to take responsibility for social reforms, those issues will have to be discussed "with employers across the bargaining table." He referred to last year's steel strike, which established pensions for his United Steel Workers.

Murray attacked the Taft-Hartley law, and its principal author—

Basing Point Bill Is Vetoed, In Party Row

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday clamped a veto on the so-called basing point bill authorizing business firms to absorb freight and fix uniform delivered prices if they act independently.

Sending the hotly contested measure back to Congress, Mr. Truman said the bill would cloud existing antimonopoly statutes and "hamper, instead of help, the preservation of fair competition."

His decision followed a sharp party split over whether the measure undermined or strengthened the antitrust laws, approaching the recent Kerr gas bill fracas in intensity.

The Kerr bill, exempting independent natural gas producers from Federal regulation, also wound up with a veto.

Kind Words for Both Sides

In stopping the basic point measure, however, Mr. Truman had kind words to say about both sponsors and opponents of the measure.

He said both wanted to clarify existing uncertainties but the re-

Committees Okay Arms Aid Bill

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

President Truman's $1,222,500,000 military assistance program was tentatively approved yesterday by the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees.

The two groups reached a general agreement on a new draft of the legislation which tightened the language in several spots. Chief change limited the President's authority to arm nations outside those named in the bill to European countries threatened by a sudden emergency.

Senator Arthur W. Vandenberg (Mich.), Republican foreign policy leader, had objected to the original proviso on the ground it gave Mr. Truman a blank check to arm any nation in the world threatened by communism.

Administration officials, however, said they wanted only to be able to take care of a sudden emergency and were agreeable to rewording the section. They are understood to have Yugoslavia in mind, and want to be able to extend military aid if Russia should attack Tito.

Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) of the Foreign Relations Committee and Senator Alexander Smith (R., N. J.) told reporters the revised bill will be shown to Vandenberg over the weekend and probably be voted on formally on Monday. Vandenberg was not present at yesterday's meeting.

Further Changes Possible

They said the emergency section—which empowers the President to divert up to $122,500,000 for the purpose—may be further altered. The objective is to keep the clause applicable to a small group of nations now outside the assistance program without naming them, the Senators declared.

Tito could hardly be included specifically in any such program now because of possible internal reactions, but if the USSR were to attack Yugoslavia, it might well be to the West's advantage to extend arms aid to Tito.

As now written, the section also would permit such emergency aid to go to Spain—an idea popular on Capitol Hill, but not at the State Department.

The second year foreign aid program calls for one billion dollars in arms for the United States' partners in the North Atlantic Pact. Another $131,500,000 would go to Greece, Turkey and Iran under the revised bill, with 16 million dollars for the Philippines and Korea and 75 milion dollars for nations in the "general area of China."

Under the original bill, Iran had been allowed $1,500,000 and lumped with Korea and the Philippines. The Senators switched this sum and added it to the 120 million dollars earmarked for Greece and Turkey. They explained the shift was to group countries by general areas.

The 75 million dollars for the "general area of China" is expected to be used in southeast Asia. Under a change adopted yesterday 40 million dollars of the total must be accounted for to Congress. Previously none of it had to be so explained.

Another change tightens up the section authorizing arms aid money to be spent for equipping munitions plants abroad. Under the present law only machine tools can

Former A-Bomb Worker Held On Charge of Helping Spy Ring

New York, June 16 (AP).—A former United States Army technician who the Government said worked on the A-bomb itself was charged today with supplying atomic secrets to a wartime Russian spy ring.

FBI agents, who seized the 28-year-old ex-Army man last night, identified him as David Greenglass of Manhattan. They quoted him as saying he felt Russia was entitled to A-bomb secrets since the Soviet was an ally of the United States during the last war.

Greenglass was accused of slipping the top-secret information to Harry Gold, Philadelphia chemist, while assigned as a technician fifth class to the Los Alamos A-bomb project in New Mexico in 1945.

Gold, arrested last May 23, was described by FBI agents as an intermediary between the Soviet spy ring and Dr. Klaus Fuchs, imprisoned British scientist who confessed getting atomic secrets for the Russians.

Greenglass' arrest paralleled the seizure in Syracuse, N. Y., last night of Alfred Dean Slack, 44-year-old chemist whom the FBI also linked with the Fuchs spy apparatus. Federal agents said Slack admitted giving samples of a secret high explosive to Gold.

California Scientist Is Seized In Denial He Was Communist

Pasadena, Calif., June 16 (AP).—Dr. Sidney Weinbaum, a Russian-born scientist who worked for three years at California Institute of Technology's super-secret jet propulsion laboratory, today was arrested on charges that he concealed membership in the Communist Party.

The 52-year-old physicist and mathematician, now a research fellow in chemistry at the institute, was taken in custody at his home by FBI agents.

The mild-mannered scientist, who speaks with a strong acent, was charged in a United States attorney's complaint with perjury and fraud against the Government.

Two counts are in the complaint. One charges that on September 23, 1949, Weinbaum "under oath before the Industrial Employment Review Board wilfully and fraudulently testified that he had never been a member of the Communist Party, when in fact he had held membership in the Communist Professional Unit No. 122, under the party name of Sydney Empson."

The other count alleges that on about April 8, 1949, Weinbaum "in his personnel security questionnaire which he signed in connection with his employment with the jet propulsion laboratory at 'Caltech' wilfully omitted a statement that he had been a member of the Communist party."

United States Attorney Ernest Tolin told reporters that in regard to many of the details of the case his "lips have been sealed by Washington," but explained that Dr. Weinbaum's employment with the jet propulsion laboratory was terminated last July when the Army ordered him excluded from work which "Caltech" was doing for the military.

The same month the scientist lost his job with the jet laboratory he was named a research fellow in chemistry at "Caltech." The appointment was made by a faculty board, and is up on June 30.

"Caltech" associates said Dr. Weinbaum has mainly been doing theoretical work concerned with crystal studies of metals. He was

Citizenship Of Bridges Is Revoked

San Francisco, June 16 (U.P.).—A Federal Court today revoked the citizenship of Harry Bridges.

Federal Judge George B. Harris decreed that the leader of the CIO Longshoremen's Union has lost his right to be an American citizen because he was convicted of committing perjury — swearing he never was a Communist to get his naturalization.

"This man stands convicted as a felon before this court," Harris ruled. Harris heard Bridges' 81-day trial.

Immigration district director Bruce Barber announced that a formal deportation hearing to send Bridges back to his native Australia will be held up pending the appeal.

Bridges has been in the United States for 30 years and his longshoremen have controlled the San Francisco waterfront since the bloody 1934 waterfront and general strike—expanding their control to the entire West Coast and Hawaii.

If Bridges' conviction is upheld, he may have to serve the five-year prison term given him by Harris before he is deported. Convicted with Bridges were two of his union lieutenants, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, both found guilty of conspiring with Bridges and fraudulently supporting his claim to citizenship. They drew two-year sentences.

U. S. Chiefs Forced Down at Guam

Manila, June 16 (U.P.).—Defense Secretary Louis Johnson and Gen. Omar N. Bradley arrived here tonight, two hours late because of engine trouble that forced them to make a dangerous "hot" landing at Guam.

Johnson and Bradley landed at Manila's International Airport at 8:53 p. m. in a military plane they boarded at Guam after the hydraulic system of Johnson's private plane failed, crippling its brakes and flaps and forcing them to land at a dangerous speed.

U. S. Policies To Be Unified By Harriman For Truman

Departments' Work In Foreign Field Will Be Harmonized; Katz Gets Paris ECA Post

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

President Truman plugged a gaping hole in the Government structure yesterday by appointing Ambassador W. Averell Harriman as a special assistant in the field of foreign affairs.

Harriman's new job in the White House will be to pull together the diplomatic, economic and military policies of the many Government departments concerned with America's place in the world.

He will advise and help the President in solving problems that cut across more than one department, and he will try to bring the work of the whole Administration into line with the over-all aims of American foreign policy.

Until now many inter-departmental groups have tried to do this job, but the President has felt the lack of a top-level coordinator at his elbow in the White House.

Now he will have one, and he will be better able to set Administration-wide policies on such issues as North Atlantic defense, the Japanese peace treaty, and the economic role of the United States abroad after the end of the Marshall Plan.

Served in Paris Two Years

Harriman has been serving in Paris for the past two years as special representative of the President in dealings with the 18-nation Marshall Plan organization. His successor, appointed yesterday, will be Milton Katz, his deputy in Paris, a Harvard Law School professor who previously held many legal posts in the Government.

The White House announcement had this to say yesterday about Harriman's new duties:

"The implementation of the decisions reached at the recent London meetings [dealing chiefly with North Atlantic defense] and the integration of the various interests of the departments and agencies concerned with the development of Government-wide policies related to our international responsibilities, require a large measure of Presidential consideration and decision.

"The President believes that Mr. Harriman's long experience in international affairs will be of great value in helping him deal with these matters. Mr. Harriman will assume his new duties early in August."

Later Secretary Acheson made the nature of the Harriman job clearer in impromptu remarks at his press conference. Acheson and Harriman, old friends from Groton School and Yale, had spent hours discussing the problem in recent weeks, and Acheson himself recommended Harriman's appointment to the President.

Develop Working Machines

This appointment was the type of development, Acheson said, in which the President had been very much interested during his term. One of the great problems in the American government, he went on,

D. C. Amvets Elect Payne Commander

Kirby Pane of 4262 S. 16th st., Arlington, last night was elected commander of the District Department, American Veterans of World War II.

Election came at the end of a two-day department convention at the Willard Hotel.

Also picked were: Paul Blacklock, first vice commander; William H. Hunter, second vice commander; Sergt. Herbert E. Franklin, third vice commander; Mrs. Pauline Garvin, fourth vice commander; Miss Dorothy N. Bower, adjutant; Charles Brosius, financial officer; Milton F. Lunch, judge advocate, and Sergt. John J. Kaspar, provost marshal.

Elected national executive committeeman was George Kennedy, a past department commander, with Nicholas Zapple as his alternate. John Murphy was named department delegate to the Amvets national convention in Cleveland, Ohio, this year.

Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.) has announced that House action on the bill cleared by the House District Committee for extending District controls to January 31, 1951, will wait until next House District day, Monday, June 26.

The existing District rent law ends Friday, June 30.

Witness Says Tyler Invited Him on Foray at Lansburgh's

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

The Government's key witness testified yesterday that less than 12 hours before the "Good Friday" killings, William A. Tyler, jr., 18, confided he planned to "get in" the Lansburgh & Bro. department store.

Two guards were killed there shortly after midnight on April 7. They were Oliver R. Hess, 57, and John C. Carpenter, 67. Both had been beaten and stabbed with a boning knife.

The critical testimony came from Howard B. Roy, 20, of 1866 Alabama ave. se. Roy said that he was Tyler's boyhood friend, but testified that when he was told of the burglary plan he would have no part of it.

Roy said that on the afternoon of Thursday, April 6, Tyler took him to the store, showed where he had once worked and how entrance could be made via a rope to a second-floor window which would not close.

"I asked him why he was showing me all this," said Roy, "and he said I might want to come back down there with him. He say he wanted to come down to the store. He wanted to get in. He said there was a lot of money down there he wanted to get hold of."

Roy testified that as they parted, Tyler said, "When you are ready, call me. So long."

Roy said that when he read of the killings, he called Tyler on the phone and said, "I see you went through with it."

"What the hell are you talking about?" Tyler replied, according to Roy.

When they met, Tyler wanted to know the basis of the accusation, Roy testified.

"I told him it was because of the plan. I said I didn't think he had the nerve to do anything like that so far as killing anyone and he said he didn't have anything to do with it," the witness testified.

Daylight Bandits Get $2699 In Two Downtown Hauls

Bandits made off with $2699 from a payroll messenger and a Colonial Beach (Va.) hotel owner in two bold daylight thefts in downtown Washington yesterday.

At 2 p. m., two unidentified thugs held up and slugged Francis Hedger, 30, 5109 7th st. nw., Atlantic Garage supervisor, and took the $1388 garage payroll and $236.

Hedger told police he was pushed from behind into a hallway at 407 7th st., while walking south on 7th st. He said he was on his way to deposit the $236.

Six stitches were taken in his head at Emergency Hospital in a wound that police said could have been caused by a gun butt.

At the garage, 1423 L st. nw., reporters were told that Hedger's brother was killed last year in a Kentucky holdup.

Hedger told police he drove from the garage with a check for $1388 and two bank deposits, for $236 and $166. He went first to the Second National Bank, where he said he deposited the $166 and cashed the $1388 payroll check.

2 Men Approached

En route to the Lincoln National Bank, Hedger said two men approached him from behind and pushed him into 407 7th st. nw. He said he was dragged into the hallway and knocked unconscious.

When he regained consciousness he said he ran into the Kay Jewelry Store next door and called police.

A quick search of the neighborhood failed to produce any clews.

Police broadcast a lookout for two white men, both about 40 years old. One was described as five feet seven inches, 160 pounds, dark complexion, either Italian or Greek, wearing a brown felt hat, and a dark brown pin-stripe suit. The other was described as six feet, 165 pounds, slim, brown hair, wearing light brown pants, sport coat and white shoes.

Police said hundreds of shoppers were swarming up and down the 7th street shopping areas when the holdup occurred.

In the second daylight theft, Delbert W. Conner, owner of the Ambassador Hotel and the "Little Reno" slot machine joint in Colonial Beach, told police someone took a cigar box containing $1075 in bills from his parked car.

Conner said he was in Washington to buy some bar supplies and parked his car in front of 57 N st nw. at about 12:15 p. m.

The cigar box was on the rear seat of the car, he said. All doors and windows in the car were open, police said.

Conner told police he was away from the car 20 minutes.

The Little Reno is a 30 by 40-foot structure at the end of one of Colonial Beach's controversial slot machine piers. A one-inch gap in the pier prevents connection with the Virginia shore, where slot machines are illegal. They are legal in the Maryland waters.

Peekskill Riot Held Rehearsal For Red 'Strong Arm' Squads

White Plains, N. Y., June 16 (AP).—A special grand jury charged today that the riot at Peekskill, N. Y., last September 4 was used by the Communist Party as "a proving ground . . . for rehearsing its strong arm forces."

In a 26-page presentment, the Westchester County jury said sponsors of the Paul Robeson concert, which was climaxed by violence, "used Communist 'goon squads organized as security guards."

The jury said previous disorders at Peekskill on August 27, when Negro Singer Robeson was prevented from making a scheduled appearance, were "not the result of organized planning on the part of any individual or group."

But it said the later concert was "planned by the Communist Party to take full advantage of the events of August 27, and as a demonstration of the power of its supporters to hold a meeting in a hostile area."

The jury said the American people had not previously witnessed "a full-scale demonstration of the power of the Communists to mobilize their militant forces quickly and in sufficient strength to constitute a challenge to the authority of Government."

However, the jury said it found that Communist guards "conducted themselves in an orderly and peaceful manner" although they were "prepared to use force if necessary."

The September 4 riot, in which cars were overturned and more than 100 persons injured, was "caused by hoodlums," the jury said.

The presentment was handed up to Supreme Court Justice James W. Bailey, following an 8-month investigation by the grand jury which heard 247 witnesses.

Two men were indicted on second-degree assault charges. Their names were withheld, pending their arrest.

Author McCarthy Called Unethical

Papers Gone, Lobby Group Is Aroused

Chairman Buchanan (D., Pa.) said yesterday the National Tax Equality Association may be called before the House Lobby Investigating Committee. He said he wants an explanation for what he calls the disappearance of records sought by the committee.

Buchanan told newsmen the association "lifted" letters from its files after committee investigators indicated a desire to photograph them.

He said he did not know what was in the letters but believed they contained "pertinent information on lobbying."

Whether the committee will call upon the association to explain its actions and demand that it produce the files, he said, may be decided at its next meeting.

The association is a private organization with headquarters in Chicago which is fighting for certain changes in the Nation's tax laws—especially for higher taxes on cooperatives.

Buchanan discussed the association case following a House speech Thursday in which he defended the committee's methods and the personnel of its investigating staff.

The committee has been criticized for its recent request to 166 big corporations that they provide detailed information on Washington expenses.

Columbus, Ohio, June 16 (AP).—The receiver for the defunct Lustron Corp. today said United States Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) was "unethical" in selling Lustron a housing manuscript for $10,000.

"This is what I object to," said Receiver Clyde M. Foraker of Columbus. He pointed to a sentence which said the material was gathered during a 30,000-mile tour as vice chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee on Housing.

"What the Government pays for belongs to the Government," said Foraker.

But, McCarthy contended "I just sold to the highest bidder."

Foraker, who took over operation of the prefabricated housing plant in Columbus more than two months ago, declared:

"I'll bet he wouldn't have gotten it (the $10,000) if he wasn't a Senator."

Lustron borrowed from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation virtually all the money it spent, a total of $37,500,000. RFC asked a receivership because Lustron defaulted on payment of $36,500,000 of its loans. Then, after Foraker operated Lustron for several weeks without being able to reach the profit side, RFC bought up Lustron for six million dollars.

Actually, McCarthy set no precedent in writing about a subject with which he was dealing as a Senator. Many congresmen and other high Government officials have sold magazine articles and books in their official names. This situation was pointed out to receiver Foraker.

'Still Unethical'

He snorted and said: "I don't care, it's still unethical."

Senator McCarthy said another housing firm bid 7½ cents a copy for his manuscript. Lustron bid 10 cents and guaranteed sale of 100,000 copies.

Foraker filed photostats of the $10,000 check from Lustron to McCarthy, and other pertinent papers, with United States District Court in Columbus.

The McCarthy article brought its author rouhly $1.12 a word. It's 8900 words took up about 37 pages of a Lustron promotion booklet.

The article is devoted to various aspects of housing and home loans. McCarthy spends 10 pages discussing the 1948 Housing Act. The rest of his article explains various types of loans for homes, discusses building codes for the next two pages, then winds up with some general discussion and personal opinions.

Housing Act Defended

The article begins on a jovial note with an anecdote. In Detroit, at the close of the housing tour, a woman pops out of a taxicab and offers the solution to the housing situation: "Pass the right laws," the woman snaps and is gone with a swish of her skirts.

The signed article by Senator McCarthy also defends the 1948 Housing Act, with the admission that no single law could meet all housing problems. For instance, he wrote:

Only the 37 pages under McCarthy's by-line apparently was the basis for the $10,000 sale.

2 Witnesses Debate Effect Of Oil Imports

By The Associated Press

Senators looking into the effect of oil imports on domestic industries wound up public hearings yesterday after receiving contradictory testimony from a major oil company official and the Governor of oil-rich Oklahoma.

M. J. Rathbone, director of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, said the foreign oil influx is "clearly in the interest of the national economy" and he opposed a Congressional move to curb the import flow.

But Gov. Roy J. Turner reported that petroleum imports in the last 18 months have had a "serious" effect on his State, cutting into tax revenues and causing loss of jobs and a general business decline.

Unless the general trend is halted, Turner said, "the oil industry will—within a very short time—become decidedly unhealthy from the standpoint of employment, potential production and discovery of new reserves."

This testimony was given to a Senate Labor subcommittee headed by Senator Neely (D., W. Va.) which has been conducting hearings on the import question since May 23. Neely, who has made clear he favors sharp curtailment of the overseas oil, said his group will report its findings by June 25.

Most of the opposition to the imports has come from witnesses representing independent petroleum producers, coal operators and mine unions who have testified that the incoming oil flow has caused widespread unemployment and business setbacks in their fields.

They generally have favored a congressional proposal to increase the oil tariff from 10½ cents to $1.05 a barrel.

President receives a lei from Norma Ito, Hawaiian delegate to the 4-H Encampment

4-H Clubbers Give President Paperweight, Hawaiian Lei

Introduced by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, four of them—Margaret Bailey, 19, of Smithville Flats, N. Y.; Leland Estes, 17, of Gay, Ga.; LeRoy Schlagel, 21, Longmont, Col.; Curtis Alberty, 21, Sioux Falls, S. D.—presented Mr. Truman with a paperweight made from the wood of an oak that grew at Mount Vernon in Washington's time.

In return, the President advised the representatives of nearly two million club members that they were the ones who would be responsible for the welfare of the Nation when the President and Secretary Brannan had given up the job.

Told that they were learning as much as they could about the Government while here, the President suggested that they do as newspapemen do—come back and tell the leaders in Washington how to run it.

In behalf of Hawaiian 4-H members, Roma Ito hung a lei about the President's shoulders.

Earlier in the afternoon, Dr. Carl C. Taylor, of the Department of Agriculture, told the delegates that agriculture is no longer an occupation handed down from father to son, but a business and science that has caused many folk arts and skills to pass out. The camp concludes next Wednesday.

Export-Import Board Members Reappointed

President Truman yesterday nominated for additional five-year terms these four members of the board of directors of the Export-Import Bank.

Hawthorne Arey of Nebraska, Herbert E. Gaston of New York, Clarence E. Gauss of Connecticut and Lynn U. Stambaugh of North Dakota.

Truman Signs Bill Raising DP Quota

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday signed into law the new Displaced Persons legislation opening the gates of the United States to some 460,500 war refugees.

The measure was signed at a special White House ceremony, and the Chief Executive said:

"Now the postwar victims of totalitarianism will be on an equal footing with earlier victims of Nazi agression."

President Truman expressed "very great pleasure" at the new legislation, which liberalizes and extends for another 12 months a 1948 law due to expire June 30.

Last year the President, during the 1948 election campaign, had described the original DP act as "flagrantly discriminatory" against Catholics and Jews.

Chairman Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) of the Senate Judiciary Committee had vehemently denied the charge. McCarran, however, has expressed his full and complete satisfaction with the new legislation.

Immeriately the bill became law over his signature, President Truman issued an executive order instructing the Displaced Commission to take over the job of investigating all refugees trying to enter this country to weed out possible security risks. The State Department and Army were directed to assist. McCarran and others had charged that Communist agents had been slipping into the United States in the guise of Displaced Persons.

The measure increases the number of DP's who can be admitted here from 205,000 under the old legislation to 341,000.

It also doubles the number of German ethnic expellees eligible for admission from 27,377 to 54,744. These are persons of German ethnic origin driven from such countries as Czechoslovakia and Poland.

The 46,500 total includes about 153,000 Displaced Persons already in this country, plus 15,000 Europeans who are here on temporary visas and will be given permanent status.

Other groups include 18,000 anti-Communist Anders Poles now in Britain, 5000 war orphans, 10,000 Greeks, 4,000 White Russians scattered through the Far East, 500 refugees from behind the Iron Curtain and 2000 from Venezia-Guilia territory ceded to Yugoslavia by Italy.

President Truman's statement concerning the placing of post-war victims of totalitarianism on an equal footing with persons driven out of their homes during the war referred to one of the important changes in the new law.

It makes January 1, 1949, rather than December 22, 1945, the cut-off date by which refugees from Eastern Europe must have entered Germany, Austria or Italy in order to be eligible for admission to the United States under the DP program.

The measure also erases the much-criticized provision of the old law requiring a specified number of the refugees to be farmers or from the Baltic States.

President Truman praised the legislation as an "expression of American fairness and generosity . . . brought about by the combined efforts of both political parties. He said the new law is "a splendid example of the way in which joint action can strengthen and unify our country."

West Berlin Detaining 39 East Zone Barges

Berlin, June 16 (AP).—Thirty-nine East German barges with chemicals for the Soviet Union are being detained in West Berlin for lack of shipping documents, British officials announced today.

West Berlin began a strict control of Russian-zone barge traffic through city locks this week in apparent retaliation for the Soviet ban on Berlin scrap-metal exports to West Germany.

Cooper Finishes State Dept. Task; Returns to Law

Former Senator John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky has finished his present assignment as a Republican consultant to Secretary Acheson.

He has gone back to full-time law practice with the firm of Gardner, Morrison & Rogers, but is ready for another assignment if Acheson needs him.

His departure leaves John Foster Dulles as the only Republican consultant now on active duty with the State Department.

Cooper insisted yesterday that there was "no significance of any kind" in the fact that he no longer had a State Department desk. He recalled that he was appointed March 28 to advise Acheson at the conferences in Paris and London. "I went to the conferences, I came back, and my task is over," said Cooper yesterday. His last job connected with the London talks will be to accompany Acheson Monday to the Governors' Conference at White Sulphur Springs.

"I'm still willing to help in any way I can," Cooper said. "But I would rather do it this way, with occasional assignments, than to take a permanent job. I think it helps to keep my independence to come in from the outside from time to time."

President Truman is expected to name Cooper as a member of the American delegation to the General Assembly of the United Nations, which is scheduled to meet in mid-September.

was to pull the departments together at the top, and to develop a working machinery for doing so.

Acheson recalled that he had thought long and hard about this problem while he was vice-chairman of the Hoover Commission. The Hoover group pointed out in its report that "on certain crucial problems" of foreign policy "Presidential consideration and often Presidential decision will be necessary."

He denied that Harriman would be a general cooridinator of all administration policies. In the foreign field, he explained, there would be issues from time to time on which the department would have to work together.

A lot of problems cut across several departments, he said, and someone must get their recommendations, sort them out, and help the President to decide on them.

It recommended the creation of "cabinet level committees" to deal with issues transcending the responsibility of any single department. It suggested that such committees could be set up "on a regular or ad hoc basis as required," and could be "a systematic means of providing the President with balanced advice on critical international problems . . ."

It was taken for granted yesterday that Harriman would summon committees of Cabinet officers wherever the need for them might arise. This would not make him a kind of super-Secretary of State, in spite of much talk to the contrary yesterday, nor would it invade any of Acheson's present authority.

Hoover Opinion Cited

The Hoover Commission, of which Acheson was a member, pointed out that Cabinet-level committees should not supplant the State Department "as a staff arm of the President," and that the State Department in this role should be "the major coordinating force within the executive branch on foreign affairs matters."

The trouble is that so many crucially important foreign problems involve many departments and require decisions by the President himself. Nowadays most of them concern the State and Defense Departments and the Economic Cooperation Administration, and many of them the Commerce, Treasury and Agriculture Departments as well.

Acheson himself felt the need of White House coordination so keenly last spring that his department sent a memorandum to the President urging a Cabinet committee on economic policies abroad after 1952.

The President's answer was the temporary appointment of Gordon Gray, former secretary of the Army, to study the whole problem and come up with recommendations. Gray hopes to submit a report to the President in August, before becoming President of the University of North Carolina.

Harriman will start his White House job about this time; the President can turn over the Gray report to him, and Harriman, in turn, can start work with the Cabinet on a program for the President to submit to Congress next January.

Harriman Eager to Leave Paris

Harriman himself has long wanted to leave Paris and to get back into the Administration here. He had served President Roosevelt as lend-lease "expediter," and as assistant at many conferences; he had been President Truman's Ambassador in London and Secretary of Commerce before accepting the Marshall Plan post in 1948.

In recent months he has paid less and less attention to the detailed work of the Marshall Plan organization, leaving it to Katz, who will succeed him with the rank of Ambassador.

Katz' successor as deputy special representative in Paris is expected to be either Lincoln Gordon, Harvard economist who helped to formulate the Marshall Plan in 1948, or Paul R. Porter, former American delegate to the United Nations' Economic Commission for Europe.

be furnished European arsenals, and the Administration had asked that this limitation be lifted. The new draft permits "production equipment including machine tools" to be furnished.

Meanwhile, the Senate passed these two other bills to strengthen American defenses:

1. Extension of the Government's synthetic rubber program for another two years after this June 30 expiration date. The House has approved a three-year extension and must now pass on the Senate change.

2. Authorizing a three-year 135-million-dollar program for building armories and other training facilities for the National Guard and Reserve forces of the armed forces.

The revamped presidential power to spend up to 10 percent of the arms bill total to extend military aid to nations not mentioned in the bill provides that he can act "in the event of a development seriously affecting the security of the North Atlantic area." Aid could go to a victim of aggression if the President finds that such action would "contribute to the preservation of the peace and security of the North Atlantic area and is vital to the security of the United States."

Former A-Bomb Worker Held

wavy hair close-cropped, Greenglass betrayed no emotion when he was arraigned this afternoon and held in $100,000 bail for a hearing next Friday.

Between curious glances about the courtroom, Greenglass chatted and smiled with FBI agents who sat beside him.

During the arraignment, United States Attorney Irving H. Saypol said the prisoner had told Federal agents that had it not been for his wife and two children he was "thinking of running away or committing suicide."

Saypol said that while assigned to the Los Alamos project the American-born Greenglass "worked on the bomb itself."

The complaint charged that Greenglass conspired with Gold and one Antoli A. Yakovlev, alias John, and "divers others" to supply Russia with atomic secrets from "about January 1, 1945, and continuously thereafter for a considerable period, the exact period" being unknown.

In mid-1945, Saypol said, Greenglass met Gold in Albuquerque and gave him information regarding individuals employed at the top-secret project and "technical processes concerned with the manufacture" of the atomic bomb.

The FBI gave the following background information on Greenglass:

He was a member of the Young Communist League in 1928 but the FBI would not say whether he was screened by security experts before he was assigned to the Los Alamos bomb project.

Greenglass was inducted into the Army April 5, 1943, and honorably discharged early in 1946. From the summer of 1944 to the day of his discharge he was assigned to Los Alamos.

Greenglass was born on New York's lower East Side March 3, 1922. Like Gold, his father was a native of Russia who came to the United States and was naturalized.

The elder Greenglass, a machinist like the son, died about a year ago. Greenglass' 70-year-old mother, Tessie, is still alive, and he has two brothers and a sister.

A 1940 graduate of Haaren High School, Greenglass had a semester at Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute before the war. After the war—in 1948—he attended Pratt Institute briefly.

He married the former Ruth Printz about seven years ago. They have two children, a son, Steven, 3, and a daughter, Barbara, born only a month ago.

His mother-in-law has been taking care of the children since Mrs. Greenglass was seriously burned in an accident in her home recently.

Greenglass made from $75 to $130 a week as a chemist in Brooklyn, counting his overtime.

Peurifoy and Spellman Reported in Meeting

Chicago, June 16 (AP).—The Chicago Tribune said tonight that John E. Peurifoy, deputy Undersecretary of State, lunched this week with Cardinal Spellman and talked to him about Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.).

Peurifoy, the Tribune said, later denied that he asked the New York prelate to intervene with McCarthy, a Roman Catholic, in the State Department's behalf. The Tribune said Peurifoy is an Episcopalian.

The Tribune dispatch from Washington said Peurifoy "told intimate friends he was going to New York to have the Cardinal 'call off'" McCarthy, who has charged the department with harboring Communists.

Mixup Wipes Out Towns' Powers In Rhode Island

Providence, R. I., June 16 (AP). A clerical error in the Legislature has wiped out most of the powers of city and town governments of Rhode Island and Gov. John O. Pastore is calling a special session of the General Assembly to correct it.

A revision in the motor vehicle code was passed in the final session of the Legislature April 21. It was meant to repeal municipal powers to control parking and speeding on State highways. But by mistake the bill also wiped out whole chapters covering city and town appropriation, tax and probate powers.

Hickenlooper Hits U. S. Aides

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) declared yesterday that the foreman of the New York grand jury that looked into the Amerasia case did not absolve Government officials for their role in it, and tried to have the inquiry pressed further.

Hickenlooper, a member of the Senate committee investigating charges of Communism in the Government, said he talked to the foreman of the grand jury, John G. Brunini, by telephone.

He quoted Brunini as saying that the report issued by the jury does not necessarily absolve Justice Department officials of Republican charges that they "whitewashed" the 1945 stolen documents case.

Furthermore, Hickenlooper said, Brunini declared that the grand jury's action was taken "to emphasize that another jury should look into the case." The foreman, Hickenlooper added, said the jury was simply unable to turn up any evidence that the Justice Department had been "remiss" in its prosecution, because of the limited time the jury was able to devote to its investigation of the Amerasia case.

The jury's official report, issued Thursday, differed, at least in its implications, from the account of the foreman, as described by Hickenlooper.

The jury did urge that another jury be impaneled to look into the case. But it said it found no evidence that any Justice Department official had been remiss in handling the prosecution.

Meantime, Senator McCarthy yesterday followed up a charge he made the previous night with a demand that secret testimony before the Senate investigating committee by Emmanuel S. Larsen, a figure in the Amerasia case, be released.

Just for laughs, see the new rhyme-cartoon, "Happily Ever After." It starts Monday in The Washington Post.

'The Winslow Boy' Makes Stirring Film

By Richard L. Coe

TERENCE RATTIGAN'S stirring play, "The Winslow Boy," has been turned into an equally stirring picture at the Trans-Lux.

This is that story about a British naval cadet, unjustly accused of theft and fired from the naval college, whose father fought the case through parliamentary tangles to final vindication. The point of the story is that no government can worthily stand against the right of an individual.

At the time of its first American performances at our own National Theater in October 1947, this had a pungent applicability to the rights of citizens under democratic government. Today that point is yet more vital against the uses of slander, unfounded gossip and vicious threats to individual livelihood.

Rattigan based his story on a celebrated episode, the Archer-Shee case, which dragged on in Britain just before World War I. The exigencies of playwrighting forced Rattigan to omit the story's moving footnote: after being cleared, Archer-Shee entered the Army and was killed in the final days of the first World War.

Although the camera moves about considerably, the screen play by Rattigan and Anatole De Grunwald follows the original closely. We begin with the retirement of the boy's father, Cedric Hardwicke, from his banking job into comfortable retirement. He and his wife, Marie Lohr, have two sons and a daughter. It looks as though the daughter will marry a neighbor's son, one son is at Oxford and the other appears started, at 12, on his navy career.

The latter is expelled for a theft he insists he did not commit. The evidence is largely circumstantial and the authorities feel they have done their just duty. But the father, a demanding man who has always forced his children to be honest, knows the lad is innocent and manages to interest the kingdom's sharpest lawyer, a member of Commons, in the case. To fight it through the family must make considerable sacrifices and the daughter loses her beau.

With icy passion, the lawyer insists that the crown allow itself to be sued in accord with the traditional assurance: "Let Right Be Done." In a cruel but understanding scene with the boy he convinces himself of the lad's innocence and in sharp, veiled attacks on the majority party's government on both the golf links and in the Commons, he finally establishes the boy's innocence by revealing the unreliability of the naval college witnesses.

Robert Donat, long off the screen, bites into the role of the lawyer with assurance; it's a splendid role and ably played. Hardwicke's father is resourcefully written and played, a demanding but proudly faithful parent. Michael Newell, who created the part for the year's London run and repeated it over here, has outgrown the role and is succeeded by a capable boy, Neil North. Margaret Leighton brings considerable quality to the part of the sister and the balance of the cast plays with the smooth unit quality that is a bulwark of the better British films.

Curiously enough, although the screen play takes one into Parliament and into the trial itself, which the stage play reported only in the Winslow living room, it goes back to the original for news of the trial's outcome. Considering that one has already been taken into several days of the trial, this repetition of the stage scene seems to me to lack impact and obscure how the unreliable witnesses were finally discounted.

At all events, "The Winslow Boy" is a mature, engrossing study and as a picture is worthy of its subject: "Let Right Be Done."

"THE WINSLOW BOY," an Eagle-Lion Film Corp. release, produced by Anatole de Grunwald-London Films, directed by Anthony Asquith, screenplay by Terence Rattigan and Anatole de Grunwald from play by Rattigan. At the Trans-Lux.

Unexcitement Is Mighty Rife In 'The Eagle and the Hawk'

UNEXCITEMENT is mighty rife in the Warner's "The Eagle and the Hawk," a Civil War yarn laid in Texas and Mexico which in outline might seem to have the excitement it definitely lacks.

John Payne and Dennis O'Keefe, two strapping lads from whom one expects at least the sound of cracking skulls and slugging fists every five minutes, are forced by the script to take things easy too long.

They're pitted together by the Governor of Civil War Texas, who feels that Maxmilian is brewing troubles in Mexico. O'Keefe is a Harvard man, Payne a rebel who's mighty miserable at having to do spy work abroad with a chap who's nominally his enemy. But link forces they do and to keep John's wan interest in the proceedings from flagging, Rhonda Fleming is on tap as the wife of a French troublemaker.

It's a complex situation the writers have to deal with, but they've been too cautious in setting their plot, since all the characters are stock figures and they've obviously no use for anything but the most obvious lines.

Things do liven up a spell when the villains lash Payne between two wild horses. The boy takes quite a beating, but sturdy O'Keefe is along to pull him out of it.

The Two D's

As for how the romance turns out—Payne adores a married woman—you should know that the two D's, Divorce and Death, are always at the scriptwriters' disposal for movie romances. This being Mexico, you can make a safe guess about Rhonda's villainous first husband.

This "Eagle and the Hawk" has, by the way, only a titular relationship to Paramount's "Eagle and the Hawk" of 1933. That was a World War I yarn, with Fredric March, Cary Grant and Jack Oakie.

Pine and Thomas, two writing gents who've turned to producing, are the masterminds behind this one and though they've used the Technicolor cameras of able James Wong Howe, excitement has eluded them at every turn. R. L. C.

Lieut. Col. Parker Awarded Hoff Medal by Army

Lieut. Col. Henry Stoddard Parker, M. C., was awarded the Army's Hoff Medal at graduation exercises here last night for the Army Medical Corps' basic science course.

A native of Washington, he received his M. D. degree from George Washington University School of Medicine, in 1939, and served at Gallinger Hospital for two years before joining the Army in 1941. He was among 22 officers graduated last night from the special service course.

The Hoff Medal first was cast in 1897 in memory of Brevet Col. Alexander H. Hoff, Army Medical Department officer. It is presented annually to the student showing "greatest proficiency" at the Army Medical School.

Cowboy's Songs Hold Senator At Little Brothers Program

Reni Photo

HONORED—Rex Allen, cowboy movie-star, laid his guitar aside long enough at a luncheon meeting of the Big Brothers of D. C. at the Carlton Hotel yesterday to outfit honor guests with 10-gallon hats. Allen, one of the national sponsors of the movement, gives Superintendent of Police Robert J. Barrett a fitting straight as when he stoops to help a child.

The Senator from Arizona had to get back to the Hill. But when they told him the movie-star cowpuncher from his own state was about to make with the guitar and the larynx, he said quicker than an Arizona cowboy could draw, "I'll stay for that," and he heard . . .

I'm a plain old country boy,
'Tater-eatin' country boy
I'm an Arizona cowboy
And the desert's my home . . .
Rex Allen singin' and strummin'.

It happened yesterday at the Carlton, where the Republic Pictures western star was on hand for a meeting of the Big Brothers of D. C., with a number of the Little Brothers of Washington and Baltimore present, too.

The D. C. chapter was organized this year as part of the national movement of helping boys with a tendency toward delinquency.

Allen, one of the national sponsors of the movement, gave its motto: "No man ever stands so straight as when he stoops to help a child."

Modus operandi of the group is "One Man and One Boy." In the five months of its life the D. C. group has matched up some 60 Big Brothers to the same number of "little brothers in trouble."

In his cowboy boots and other dress, Allen made a big hit with the little brothers at the luncheon.

He did the same with the honor guests, fitting white Stetson 10-gallon hats on such figures as Superintendent of Police Robert J. Barrett and three members of Congress from Arizona—Senator Ernest W. McFarland and Representatives John Robert Murdock and Harold A. Patten.

This means, in case you didn't know it, that exactly three fourths of the entire delegation in Congress, Senate and House, of the State of Arizona, turned out to welcome the blond boy born on an Arizona ranch.

Haze Linked to Calif. Desert

Honolulu, June 16 (AP).—The great Pacific haze may have come from the Southern California desert.

The United States Weather Bureau popped up with this new story just as meteorologists here had pretty well saddled the blame on Mauna Loa, Hawaii's erupting volcano.

The finger was put on Southern California by weathermen in Washington—not the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce, which was a mite put out by three days of dismal, colorless skies.

Chief Meteorologist Robert H. Simpson of Honolulu's Weather Bureau said yesterday the Washington report indicated the smog-like pall contained sand from Southern California's desert.

There was a desert windstorm there June 6, Simpson said, and computation by his Washington colleagues pointed to the possibility winds had carried the sand out over the Pacific.

The haze hung over more than one million square miles—from Wake Island eastward past Hawaii yesterday when a northeast trade wind ruffled an almost dead calm.

Area Officer Awarded Medal for Heroism

A heroic act more than six years ago won the Soldier's Medal yesterday for Air Force Capt. Lee R. Lucas, of 724 Lee blvd., Falls Church.

Lucas rescued three student fliers when a bomber he was piloting crashed and burned near Spokane, Wash., May 9, 1944. The medal was presented by Brig. Gen. E. H. Underhill, Air Force military personnel director, in a ceremony at Air Force headquarters.

Arlington Float Wins

Chicago, June 16 (AP).—A float from Arlington, Va., won second place today in the civic category of the parade of States contest at the 30th annual business meeting of the U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce. The Chicago float was first.

McCloy Tells Germans to Lay Ills to Hitler

Duesseldorf, Germany, June 16 (U.P.).—United States High Commissioner John J. McCloy angrily told complaining Ruhr industrialists today that Germany should blame Adolf Hitler and the Nazis—not the western Allies—for present restrictions.

"Never in history has a defeated country bee set so rapidly on its feet by its former enemies," McCloy told 100 Ruhr industrial leaders who met here under auspices of the Committee for Study of German-French Economic Cooperation.

McCloy delivered a 20-minute speech endorsing the idea of the Schumann Plan to pool coal and steel and urging an extension of German exports. Then he called for questions, and the result was a two-hour session largely on criticism and complaints by the Germans.

The High Commissioner became red-faced and angry when Dr. Theodors Goldschmidt, president of the Essen Chamber of Commerce, said:

"Occupation costs are excessive. If Churchill and Roosevelt felt like giving Stalin presents at the expense of Germany, then the Americans and British should foot the bill."

Then McCloy, his voice shaking with anger, replied that the industrialists should not "cry in their beer" because of Western Allied restrictions, but should put the blame where it belongs—on Hitler and Nazi aggression.

Replying to complaints against Germany's high taxes, McCloy said:

"We in America have high taxes, too. Personally I believe they are higher than yours."

This remark drew groans from the audience.

He explained also that there has been too much noise about occupation costs.

"Actually the net cost to Germany of the occupation is very small," he said. "For instance, United States soldiers in Germany are spending 48 million dollars a year, exclusive of food. Then there are Marshall Plan funds and private welfare subscriptions."

Russia Asked To Help Free Missionaries

Berlin, June 16 (U.P.).—The three Western Allied High Commissioners today appealed to Russia to help free 68 German missionaries and one French nun said to be detained in Communist North Korea under "abominable circumstances."

The request was made in a letter to the Soviet commander in Germany, Gen. Vassily I. Chuikov. West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer recently told the Commissioners that Benedictine missionaries were being detained in North Korea.

The Western Commissioners said six Benedictine fathers and one nun had been imprisoned in Pyongyang more than a year. They said 16 other fathers, 26 brothers and 20 sisters were understood to be in a concentration camp at Kanggye, in north Pyongyang

Tuberculosis Drops Among Navy Workers

The incidence of tuberculosis among Navy civilian employes was one-third less last year than during 1948, it was reported yesterday by Navy Surgeon General C. A. Swanson.

He credited the Navy's tuberculosis control program, which provides earlier and therefore effective treatment of employes contracting the disease.

Jap Opposition Set To Back U. S. Bases

Tokyo (Saturday) June 17 (NYHT).—Japan's two main opposition parties—the Social Democrats and People's Democrats—today began a policy change which, it was reliably learned, will culminate soon in a declaration of support for keeping American garrisons in Japan after a separate peace treaty with the West.

These developments are linked directly with the forthcoming talks between Gen. Douglas MacArthur and State and Defense Department officials. They are a remarkable step away from pre-election propaganda of the opposition parties, which campaigned against American bases and for an over all peace including Russia.

The first step was an agreement today by Democratic Party leaders to join with the pro-American Liberal Government of Premier Shigeru Yoshida in forming a "nonpartisan intraparty" approach to peace treaty issues. The Social Democrats are expected to follow suit.

A recognition of "the realities of the Cold War" is the reason given by Saburo Chiba, People's Democratic Party leader, as grounds for the change.

Reasoning behind this about-face is not so bewildering as it might seem. Before last Sunday's election, the opposition clamored for an over-all peace, including Russia, on the grounds it would signify settlement of the Cold War and would keep Japan from being a source of controversy between the great powers.

For political reasons the parties ignored the fact there was no sign of settlement in sight.

Simultaneously, by favoring an over-all peace to be concluded on settlement of the Cold War, the parties could argue against American bases by asserting that an East-West agreement would permit neutralization of Japan. It was a definite "ostrich head in the sand" policy, and the opposition leaders knew it.

Now that there is no political capital to be made out of wishful international thinking, the opposition, faced with a probable offer of a separate peace with the West, have had to come down to realities.

Japanese Reds Sue in Bid To Bar Purge of Leaders

Tokyo, June 16 (AP).—Japan's Communists today sued the government in an attempt to prevent the purge of their 41 leaders from public life.

The Tokyo District Court, however, was doubtful whether it had jurisdiction.

Korea Convicts Woman as Spy

Seoul, Korea, June 16 (U.P.)—A military court tonight convicted Kim Suin, 30-year-old Korean charged with spying for the Communists. A death sentence was recommended.

Madame Kim, who formerly worked for the United States Army, said earlier she was the mistress of an American Army colonel during the time she allegedly was engaged in espionage.

The Korean woman said she lived with Col. John E. Baird, of Providence, R. I., as his wife. Baird was provost marshal of the United States Twenty-fourth Corps in Korea under the Military Government.

After the South Korea Republic was formed, Baird became adviser to the national police under the military advisory group.

Kim said she used her Army connections to get United States vehicles in which four top Red agents fled to North Korea. United States Army cars and jeeps also were used for Communist activities, she said.

Baird, described as one of the most popular officers in Korea, left here June 5 and is en route to America.

The defendant admitted aiding the escape of the Communist leaders, three of them during the time she was employed by Baird as an informer.

Charges include giving information on the United States and Korean army, allegedly obtained through Baird, to Communist agents, giving shelter and money to South Korea Labor Party members, and hiding firearms and Communist documents.

Witnesses for Kim included Miss Mo Yun Suk, former United Nations observer for Korea, who knew her at the American-sponsored Ehwa Christian College. Miss Mo said Kim was an orphan, befriended by missionaries.

Miss Mo said Kim fell under the influence of the Communist Lee Kang Kook and became his mistress before the Americans entered Korea. Kim admitted helping Lee escape to North Korea in 1946.

Danes Unify Forces

Copenhagen, Denmark, June 16 (AP).—All Danish defense forces have been placed under one command, it was announced tonight. Rear Admiral E. J. C. Qvistgaard was named commander. He is now chief of the Danish Atlantic Pact staff in Washington.

Transit Tieup In Los Angeles Hits Million

Los Angeles, June 16 (U.P.).—A streetcar and bus strike today cut off transportation for more than one million riders who use the lines to travel about the Nation's most sprawling city.

Negotiations between the Los Angeles Transit lines and the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes (AFL) failed to break a deadlock over wages early today.

Mayor Fletcher Bowron failed in an attempt to postpone the walkout until after the Shriners convention here next week. By Sunday, more than 125,000 Shriners and their families will be in Los Angeles, sending the population well above two million.

The union seeks a 20-cent hourly pay boost above the current average pay scale of $1.47 an hour, plus other contract changes. When negotiations were discontinued, the company was offering the union a 4-cent increase.

Milk Strike Peace Weighed

union dairy employes in a statement charging NLRB Counsel Denham with "just one more example" of "strike breaking tactics."

Glenn E. Watts, executive secretary of the Industrial Union Council, which represents 16 affiliated CIO locals, said the 40-hour work week which the drivers have asked for has been the standard since 1937. He declared the dairies can afford to meet "the reasonable demands of the drivers."

Meanwhile, at the Wardman Park, negotiators for the industry and the union continued their bargaining, making little if any headway. The negotiators have been in almost continuous session, except for sleeping breaks, since Sunday with Federal Conciliators Martin O'Connell and Henry Baker doggedly seeking to keep the disputants on the main issue.

Under the contract which expired at 11:30 a. m. Saturday, the dairy employes worked a six-day, 48-hour week. The plants operated seven days a week.

The union asked a 5½-day work week with the plants continuing to operate seven days. Management has offered a five-day work week on condition plant operations shut down entirely on Sunday. The union has rejected the management offer, arguing that management's plan will result in a loss of take-home pay.

Knife Cut in Play Kills Radford Youth

Radford, Va., June 16 (AP).—A knife which opened in his pocket while he was playing caused the death of a 16-year-old boy here last night.

Hughie Small, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benny Small live at a gypsy camp on route 688, was rolling on the ground with two cousins when the knife in his pocket came open, stabbing him in the thigh.

Rushed to a Radford hospital, the youth died about three minutes after admission. The knife had cut a large artery.

Engineers' Anniversary Celebrated at Belvoir

Celebrating the 175th anniversary of the Corps of Engineers, Fort Belvoir yesterday played host to thousands of area civilians and military guests.

The open house program included exhibits, rifle matches, display of light planes, and a parade of 8500 Engineer troops. In the reviewing stand was Maj. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, chief of Engineers.

Closing event was a dinner attended by 500 officers and former officers from the area.

Action on Milk Imports Put Off

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

A House District subcommittee hearing on emergency legislation to open the Washington milk market to outside producers was suddenly postponed late yesterday for at least a week.

Two hours after the hearing was set for 10 a. m. Monday, it was postponed.

The legislation was introduced in the wake of criticism at the Capitol over the milk drought here during the current strike. One proponent of the measure, Rep. A. L. Miller (R., Neb.), said it was needed to eliminate a situation where a strike can cut off milk supplies to District consumers.

Meanwhile, District Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West ruled that you can give away "imported" milk in the District even if you can't sell it.

District food inspectors had turned over to West the cases of a local restaurant and a gasoline station which two days ago started offering outside milk to all comers for free.

West's ruling was that the Milk Act of 1925, which restricts sales in the District to milk from District-licensed farms, would not apply to give-aways, provided "no element of sale is involved."

Postponement of the House District Subcommittee hearing followed two earlier Capitol Hill conferences. These involved District officials, milk producer spokesmen and, behind the scenes, District Committee members.

Sees "No Need" for Bill.

Just before the call-off announcement, Rep. Howard W. Smith (D., Va.), a strong ally of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association, told a reporter he "saw no need" for the measure.

Also just before the hearing setback, Miller, who is sparking the drive to lift the ban on imported pasteurized milk here, said:

"There may be some hitch. I understand Smith is a little concerned. Some pressure is being brought not to have it (the hearing)."

The resolution, originally scheduled for speedy committee consideration, would authorize the Commissioners to permit importation of Federally-inspected pasteurized and raw milk from anywhere outside the District, whenever they considered it in the public interest.

The District Milk Act of 1925 restricts sale of milk here to that which comes from dairies licensed by the District Health Department. This has the effect of limiting milk imports to the immediate Washington milkshed.

Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.), author of the import liberalization measure, said he postponed the hearing because he would be out of the city all next week.

Representative Thomas G. Abernathy (D., Miss.), chairman of the subcommittee assigned to hear testimony on the McMillan resolution, said Representative Smith had called him earlier about the proposed hearings.

Miller, a physician, stressed the hearings would not be directed at the strike or the issues involved but toward changing the basic milk act with a view to making it an open instead of a closed market.

A resolution is being prepared to give the Abernathy subcommittee full subpena powers.

There might be a need to get the records, Miller explained, "to find out what is going on to make the price of milk higher here than in other sections."

He cited Agriculture Department figures purporting to show the national average milk producer sale price is higher than the District's.

Says D. C. Price High

The national average, according to the figures, is $4.38 per hundredweight, while the Washington area milk producer price is $5.68. He cited these prices in other cities: Chicago — $3.61 per hundredweight; San Francisco — $4.22; Detroit—$4.20; New York—$5.20, and Pittsburgh—$4.53.

Miller said he had decided not to introduce a similar bill that would permanently admit to the District milk from any part of the country so long as it is up to United States Public Health Service standards. Instead he will concentrate on the McMillan resolution already before the committee, and perhaps offer broadening amendments when it is considered.

Meanwhile, Washington consumers, ending a full week of the milk strike, were finding it progressively easier to purchase a quart or two of milk at non-union dairy outlets in the city.

In nearby Maryland and Virginia—unhampered by District milk import regulations—scores of grocery stores had an ample milk supply on hand.

Under the emergency medical plan, the shutdown dairies, in cooperation with Metropolitan Police, delivered milk to homes of another 300 families. This brought the three-day total of home deliveries to 1019.

Dairy spokesmen estimated about 30,000 quarts of milk were sold across the counter at the nine closed dairies yesterday.

Alexandria Mayor Franklin P. Backus told the Alexandria City Council yesterday an influx of outside milk shipments had eased the city's milk shortage.

Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West ruled that giving away milk was legal under the milk act provided "no element of sale is involved."

British Probe Sabotage Clew

Devonport, England, June 16 (U.P.).—Britain's security agents tonight began to investigate "suspected sabotage" aboard the 1730-ton destroyer Urania which the Admiralty said had suffered "slight internal damage."

The agents were transferred from Plymouth where they have been probing suspected sabotage attempts aboard the 23,000-ton aircraft carrier Illustrious.

An Admiralty spokesman said a generator in the Urania's engine room apparently had become overloaded. Preliminary inquiries disclosed no evidence of malicious damage, but a complete probe into the incident has been ordered.

West Rejects Soviet Demand On Trieste

By The Associated Press

The United States, Britain and France yesterday rejected Russia's new demand that Trieste be internationalized.

In virtually identical notes the three governments denied Moscow's charge they have violated the Italian peace treaty by keeping 10,000 troops in the Adriatic port area.

The Western Big Three said the 1946 plan to create a free territory around Trieste is now impossible to carry out because Russia repeatedly has sabotaged efforts to appoint an acceptable international governor.

The State Department at the same time scoffed at Russian accusations that Britain and the United States have established an "illegal naval base" at Trieste and are carrying out "military maneuvers and other military measures."

Russia had demanded in a formal note April 20 that Trieste be internationalized and the Allied troops be withdrawn. Moscow since then has served notice it will refuse to discuss an Austrian peace treaty until a satisfactory reply was received.

Israel Plans New Villages For 800,000

A four-year Development Plan to absorb from 750,000 to 800,000 new immigrants into the productive life of the Jewish state was described last night by Abba Khoushi, Israeli labor leader.

Khoushi spoke at the opening of the three-day second national conference of the American Trade Union Council of the National Committee for Labor Israel in the Hotel Shoreham. About 400 were present.

Khoushi said the four-year plan calls for erection of 300,000 housing units and 480 settlements to house at least 48,000 families, and expansion of industry to cope with the immigration problem.

Joseph Schlossberg, general chairman of the National Committee for Labor Israel, said that the Arab states are still arming for war against Israel and the latter is being outdone in the arms race. The decision of the United States, Great Britain and France to supply arms for all Middle Eastern nations is so far "merely a paper decision," he asserted.

Khoushi, a member of the Israeli Parliament and of the executive of the Histadrut, Israel's labor federation, said earlier that the Histadrut was withdrawing from the World Federation of Trade Unions because it was no longer "a unified international."

Jacob Potofsky, president of the trade unions council, will address the conference at noon today. A dinner in honor of Khoushi will be held at 6:30 p. m. at which AFL and CIO leaders will speak.

MPs Capture Wanted Ex-GI

Munich, Germany, June 16 (U.P.). Homer Cook, 27, Muskogee, Okla., ex-GI, who escaped jail three times in two months, surrendered to police today without a fight in the bedroom of his German sweetheart.

Two American military police and six German police battered down the door of Anna Sporer's flat to find cook sprawled across the bed, weak from blood poisoning and hunger.

He wore the same soiled fatigue trousers and undershirt in which he had escaped 60 hours before from the Dachau Army stockade, 10 miles north of here. He was to have gone on trial in United States District Court Wednesday on 19 counts, including jail break, armed robbery and illegal entry into Germany.

Fraulein Sporer, 21, was not present at the capture. She had left for Nuernberg, where police had cordoned off a wooded area in the belief they had the guitar-strumming badman trapped.

Told later of her sweetheart's capture, Anna fainted.

Watergate

The open air concerts at the Watergate opened Thursday with Puccini's "Madame Butterfly," performed by the San Carlo Opera Company before a great crowd, from whom the rain, but not overhead aircraft, was mercifully withheld. The opera is a sad story of blighted love, seemingly fanciful, but actually bearing some resemblance to the hundred-year-old story of America's first emissary to Japan, Townsend Harris, one of the greatest diplomats in American history. Mr. Harris, ill in health and sick in spirit from the neglect of Washington, took the young Okichi-san into his household, and she devoted herself to his comfort till alcoholism got the better of her, and she had to be dismissed. In the opera, of course, Madame Butterfly, well done by Mina Cravi, is deserted, but she ends her life as Okichi-san did, a suicide. She is, however, still honored in Japanese history, and there is an Okichi-day in her home town, with a ceremony which American officials have attended. Puccini sets his music to a sordid little story, but the music has lingered on all opera programs since it was composed a half century ago, and was greeted appreciatively, for itself as well as for its promise of a summer enjoyment for the stay-at-homes.

The Eight-Ball

Mr. Hoffman has got into the habit of expecting a British bombshell on the eve of the appropriations hearings on the ECA authorization. So, having last year weathered Messrs. Mayhew and McNeill, he was in a sense prepared for Dr. Dalton, reputed author of the Labor Party's rejection of the Schuman Plan. However, he agreed with Senator Alexander Smith that it might be a good idea, in view of the negativeness of the Labor Party manifesto, informally to ask the British government to declare its policy on European integration. Certainly the statement is a British first, last and all the time proposition. There is nothing in the document, apparently, to suggest that Dr. Dalton and his doctrinaire friends wanted to keep Britain's hands free because of obligations to the world beyond Europe.

The embarrassed Premier Attlee suggests that an alternative plan is in the making in London to the Schuman Plan. In normal circumstances this would tend to undo the damage created by the Labor Party statement, but its effect at the present time is exactly the contrary. It has, bluntly, increased the suspicion that sabotage rather than improvement is contemplated. For, since the British have refused to participate in the Schuman conference because they object to the ticket of admission—namely, adherence to the underlying principle propounded by Mr. Schuman that the working out of the plan should be based on the resignation of sovereignty—the British alternative must clearly be one intended to shield sovereignty. That would simply gut the basic idea in Mr. Schuman's plan.

For this world-wide suspicion of British motives the British have nobody to blame but themselves. They have given the rest of Europe the runaround on every proposal to contribute part of national sovereignty to supernational organization. Western Union, for instance, was Mr. Bevin's invention, yet the set-up turned out to be a conference, not a union. The Council of Europe has been kept innocuous at British instigation. The European Payments Union has been so amended by the British that no administrative power would be vested in the European board. Belgium, in consequence, refuses to have anything to do with it. The discussions on sterling balances have gone on so long and so fruitlessly that the American negotiators seem to have come to the conclusion that their British opposites are not serious. Mr. Bidault's proposal for an Atlantic High Council of Peace broke on the rocks of the British preference for something less of a threat to national sovereignty. The story is told of Lord Montgomery having confessed that the real stumbling block in yielding authority to a supernational military organization is his own country.

It may be that there are alternatives to all these plans of supernational organization that would, however, move to the same goal. Many Britons, who are by no means isolationist on the Schachtian model of Dr. Dalton, are so persuaded. But they are notably laggard in putting their ideas down for discussion, leaving the initiative in such matters to other nationals, not including, unfortunately, the Canadians, who could be remarkably helpful in persuading the British. Instead there is a clinging to a situation that in the nature of things is temporary. Sterling balances—representing as they do war debts owed by Britain—will not last forever as a cushion for full employment of the British population in making unrequited payments in goods. Marshall Plan money is not permanent. The sterling area will certainly be contracted when Germany and Japan come back to health and strength in the economic world, and when the dollar shoulders more responsibility. Britain in the long run stands to gain more from the abatement of national sovereignty than any nation on earth. However, it would be the height of folly to try to coerce Britain out of its effort to remain self-contained. It is legitimate only to ask her, if she cannot help, not to obstruct. First business, however, is to bring Germany and France together, and it should be pressed without wasting time on recriminations.

Point IV

The interest shown at the 51-nation conference at Lake Success in Point IV must have been very gratifying to President Truman. This is his "baby." His vision of extending technical assistance to so-called backward areas is a tribute to his mind as much as to his heart. There is a profound philosophy back of it. It is this: the essence of the world problem is the relation of the economic power lodged in the United States to world betterment. This sounds like the proposition of a "do-gooder." On the contrary, it corresponds to the most enlightened self-interest, for technical aid would reinforce peace and at the same time provide markets.

This is how other nations with similar resources to our own saw the proposition when the President first initiated it. Their interest has never flagged, as was shown in the discussions at Lake Success. There were no idle do-gooders there. Nonmembers, such as Switzerland, and members alike sounded eager to participate in the program, in making a contribution either in money or experts, or both. The United States will put up, if the Appropriations Committees agree, 12 million dollars, and the other nations after three days of discussion added their quota of eight million dollars. The goal was 20 million dollars, and it will all be spent under United Nations auspices. In addition, the United States will spend 23 million dollars for technical aid on its own Point IV program.

Now this is not, by contrast with other projects, a barrel of money, but it is enough for the purpose in mind. Big money is not wanted. It might be squandered in big-scale enterprises that so-called backward areas could not absorb, and, indeed, would find embarrassing to their economies. Development "assistance" was probably the worst feature of the age of imperialism. It created an imperium in imperio in more than one ancient land. Yet nothing is worse for a traditional economy than to have the latest thing in modern industrialism thrust into it. Thin budgets are strained in repayments, inflation is encouraged, the moneylender and the hoarder become kings, and the disparity between rich and poor is widened. Most of the political troubles in these traditional countries can be traced to this kind of dumping, though the lesson never seems to be learned, and development corporations in America are ceaseless in trying to make over traditional societies. Examples are the grandiose proposals to modernize Iran and Afghanistan. What these countries need is grass roots betterment. This is why this newspaper has hitherto looked skeptically at one or other proposal for the guarantee of private investments abroad—why we have wished to see Point IV kept strictly to technical assistance. In due course the affected countries will yield opportunities for investment as the ability to absorb it is created.

The great task is to persuade—to persuade the peoples in traditional areas to accept ways of doing better what they are already doing. In Greece a highly instructive instance is available of what can be done by this kind of wise and prudent leadership. In Greece a great swamp has been turned into rice paddies; the Greeks are learning to can their milk; they are being taught how to process their olive oil. Extend this kind of aid to other lands and you will see that the benefits could be boundless. But the people can be shaken out of age-old habits only by example, not by precept. And the example must be set by their own countrymen—the alert among them, the leaders whose minds can be opened by Western technicians. The first job is to set up a roster of this talent. If it is used judiciously, a bridge will have been built between the modern and the traditional nations which will be enduring, yielding a new coprosperity and buttressing peace.

Milk Sanitation

Some very strange circumstances surround the virtual halt in congressional efforts to permit imported milk to be sold in Washington. Obviously pressures, presumably from friends of dairy interests, have intervened in the round of projected bills, hearings and cancellations. It is probably true that sound legislation to make Health Department regulations conform with less rigorous Federal standards elsewhere cannot be dispassionately considered during the heat of a strike—though it does not make sense that during the emergency imported milk may be sold in Arlington but not in the District. Completely apart from the strike, however, there is plenty of reason to reexamine the paper regulation which requires all milk sold in Washington to come from farms inspected by the District Health Department.

That regulation, in effect before the war, has been relaxed since 1942. A proposal to activate it again on June 30 is now before the Commissioners. This restriction can be defeated in either of two ways—by congressional action, or by a vote of the Commissioners not to invoke the ban. Washington milk consumers, we suspect, have had quite enough to do with various monopolies in the milk industry without encouraging another.

For practical purposes, such a prohibition on milk imports would increase the near-monopoly of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association, which furnishes more than 80 percent of the milk consumed here. This association recently was convicted, along with two of the nine local dairies, of fixing milk prices in restraint of trade under so-called full-supply contracts. Meanwhile, of course, nearby farmers who did not install the expensive steam sterilizing equipment required by the District would be forced to send their milk to Baltimore, Philadelphia or elsewhere. Local dairies which have fought the association would be forced to embrace it again.

The question here is whether Health Department regulations formulated in 1925, are up to date. It goes without saying that there must be no skimping on protection against disease. But the new and less expensive chemical sterilization procedure is approved by the United States Public Health Service and is widely used; indeed, chlorine sterilization is mandatory in restaurants here. For eight years imported milk has been sold off and on in the District without ill effect. The Commissioners, it seems to us, ought to be especially wary of an unnecessary regulation which would leave consumers even more at the mercy of a milk monopoly.

Harriman's Job

The appointment of W. Averell Harriman, roving Ambassador for ECA, as Special Assistant to President Truman will add strength and direction to White House leadership in world affairs. Most of Mr. Truman's predecessors found it necessary to have at their elbow a sort of alter ego who could act in the President's name in resolving interdepartmental differences. Under a Cabinet system such a function is performed by the Cabinet Secretary. The late James Forrestal always felt that there should be such a functionary here, and the idea almost came to fruition, with Mr. Harriman himself the selection. However, the proposal fell through during the Truman-Wallace row, which put Mr. Harriman, instead, at the head of the Department of Commerce.

The motive back of the new Harriman appointment is more specific. The President needs help in pulling together the interests of his departments in America's world relations. Almost every agency in Government has some contact nowadays with foreign affairs, and this frustrates the development in the State Department of a single policy, for the interests of the agencies in this field are generally in conflict. Defense and State are often in a tangle on policy, so are Justice and State. The latest instance is the difficulty of hammering out understanding between the Department of Justice and the Department of State on escapees.

The President is to be congratulated on this effort to resolve these difficulties. Mr. Harriman's assignment, which will be to make the American Executive one instead of several in the eyes of the world, is vitally significant. The new special assistant has had a unique experience in both diplomacy and administrative office, and he has the confidence as well as the stature of the officeholders with whom he will have to deal. He has a sleepless industry, and, in spite of his long spell of duty, his zeal in developing an American policy which would safeguard peace as well as security is undiminished. From all accounts his successor in Paris, Mr. Milton Katz, can be relied upon for good performance.

McCarthy On "Payoffs"

That illustrious author and housing expert, Joseph McCarthy, in his spare time a United States Senator from Wisconsin, has accused John E. Peurifoy, employed full-time as Deputy Undersecretary of State, of arranging a secret "payoff" for a witness in the investigation of alleged Communists in the State Department. The witness in question, Emmanuel S. Larsen, who represents himself as a full-time author, otherwise unemployed, says the Senator's statements are "complete lies"—an evaluation made so frequently in the past about other McCarthy statements that it has become a kind of cliche which a high-priced author like the Senator would probably deplore.

Senator McCarthy must be ranked as one of the highest-priced authors of our time, or any other time. That $10,000 paid to him for a little brochure on housing by the Lustron Publishing Corp.—which used to build prefabricated houses on the side until it went broke through no fault of Senator McCarthy—puts him right up in a class with such literary figures as the Duke of Windsor or Joe Louis. In fact, his take as a writer compares favorably with that of his fastidious colleague, Senator Styles Bridges, who accepted a salary of $35,000 a year for serving as a trustee of the United Mine Workers pension fund while drawing compensation as a United States Senator.

Of course, such versatility is nothing new with Senator McCarthy. He held on to a Wisconsin judgeship while campaigning for the Senate, despite a provision in the Wisconsin constitution forbidding judges to seek political office. Any author as high-priced as Mr. McCarthy certainly ought to know what the word "payoff" means.

NIGHT VISIT

Sure-footed as a deer, he goes
Along the secret path he knows.
Any moonlight night he'll follow
Through the bracken-gleaming hollow.
Where the moon's slow silver drips
On his reaching finger-tips!
He needs neither guide nor lamp,
But when the night is sweet and damp
With dew, he'll visit, quite at ease,
His old, gnarled gnomes of apple trees.
There, where moon and starlight dapples
Leaves that veil round, silver apples,
He'll lean against a bough and drink
Silence at the dark's cool brink;
Then turning home, he'll wisely keep
His old trees' quietness through his sleep!

Milk Investigation

The completely callous and highhanded manner in which the people of the Washington area were deprived of their regular milk supply calls for an immediate and searching investigation of the Washington milk business by the District Committees of Congress. The burden of blame should be placed where it belongs and measures should be taken to protect the innocent public from a recurrence of this present situation, which has borne heavily on the children and the sick—who have no place at the bargaining table.

The writer could not agree more strongly with you in pointing out the public responsibility of the milk industry—both management and employes. Under public laws the industry is permitted to escape the rigors of competition and to guarantee itself an adequate profit. Witness the fact that at this moment the Washington area producers are seeking greater freedom from the competition of more remote milk sheds. One wonders at what point the general public interest will obtain a minimum measure of freedom from the sort of irresponsibility now being so flagrantly demonstrated.

It's high time that the milk industry in this area is recognized for what it is—a public utility—and made subject to all provisions applicable thereto.

'Fetish of Freedom'

Your fine editorial of June 14 on Father Guthrie's proposal to limit academic freedom to the area of the "true and good"—presumably to be defined by Father Guthrie's church—raises a point which Protestants also need to consider and to take unto themselves in searching self-criticism. As free religion has worked out in this country, Protestant Christianity stands for both faith—in many, many forms—and the absolute freedom of inquiry. I cannot see any other logical alternative except Father Guthrie's position. Faith, in the Protestant view, does not limit freedom but inspires, directs and guides it through a voluntary act of will.

It is the breakdown of faith outside the Roman communion which has led to the result which Father Guthrie finds so frightening, of academic freedom which apparently has no inner inspiration, direction or moral guidance. There are only the two alternatives: To surrender to an organized outer control, such as Father Guthrie represents, or to seek and find a renewal of inner conscience and guidance, represented by free religion. There is a third alternative—and here Father Guthrie would agree—which is to let a secular faith, communism or One Hundred Percent Americanism, take over and supply the direction, stifling the freedom which has failed through want of inner faith. That's happened in many countries. Catholics and Protestants both call it secularism, but we differ sharply in our remedy.

Defense of Japan

Walter Lippmann in his June 12 column, "The American Commitment in Japan," puts up a good case for the abandonment of Japan. If we keep our troops in Japan we should have to defend the islands and feed the Japanese upon an attack by Soviet Russia. "A reliable police force and a coast guard" set up before we withdraw might take care of internal security, and external aggression, it is hinted, would be "unattractive" to the Russians even though "it is not an American interest to undertake the defense and supply of Japan" in case of war.

A peace treaty would presumably leave Japan committed not to rearm to prevent aggression from without, or if it did permit rearmament against external aggression, we would not even do for Japan what we are doing for Europe, because "the forces we now have in Japan, or could or would put there in time of war, are not a defense against atomic bombardment."

All this because Japan is 4000 miles away and the last part of that distance is vulnerable to Russian attack by plane and submarine. Moreover Japan has no merchant fleet or navy as Britain had to help defend and feed herself. Therefore to commit ourselves to feed Japan in time of war "is one, in view of our commitments to Europe, which it might be too difficult to carry out." To defend Japan with our troops is to invite a second Bataan on an even greater scale.

Then, having built his usual straw men, Mr. Lippmann leaves them standing. Somehow or other some one under the conditions which he has laid down, should be able to devise a guarantee of the territorial integrity and independence of Japan "which does not (a) involve our defense, (b) involve our supply or (c) involve us in any way to any commitment. In other words, we want our cake and we also want to eat it. The line forms on the right gentlemen. Rope trick artists, sleight-of-hand artists, adepts at the shell game and sawers-in-half-of-ladies, are all invited to compete.

"Clear And Present Danger"

In a syndicated radio column appearing in your issue of June 9, John Crosby had words of high praise for a "documentary" on the loyalty program, "Clear and Present Danger," heard over a large network June 5. Actually it was an extremely misleading performance that should never have been given in its actual form, and it should certainly not be repeated without drastic change.

In the first place, the broadcast was set in a false background of espionage activities. The loyalty program does not deal with espionage activities or breaches of security on the part of Government employes, and was not intended to. The loyalty program deals with the attitudes and beliefs of Government employes, not with breaches of law or regulation on their part.

The Coplon espionage case is in point here. Judy Coplon was being investigated for disloyalty under the loyalty program when evidence came into the hands of the FBI that she had violated a criminal statute by acts—not attitudes—of hers. Judy Coplon passed right out of the hands of the loyalty board system, which every one would agree is not equipped to do delicate and difficult police work, nor to hear and pass on criminal charges that can result in a heavy fine, long imprisonment, or even the death penalty. I am sure that Mr. Seth Richardson, head of the loyalty board system, would himself say that his program does not and does not wish to conduct espionage investigations, and act as prosecutor, judge, and jury in addition in such grave matters.

By using this espionage background for its "story line," the broadcast made a grave implication about the need for the loyalty program, that is injurious to general public morale and to the reputation of Government employes especially. That implication is that the civil service of the United States was believed to be so full of spies and saboteurs that every single Government employe and every single successful applicant for employment, from charwoman up, had to be investigated. This implication was strengthened by the recital of a long list of cases—many not American at all—in the introductory part of the broadcast, every one of which was an espionage, not a loyalty case.

The implication is false. The purpose of the loyalty program is to separate from Government employment persons who hold subversive ideas. It is quite different to feel or say that Fascist or Communist sympathies are widespread enough among civil servants to warrant a thorough search for them, and to say that spies and saboteurs are widespread among civil servants.

Perhaps the holding of subversive ideas is as dangerous as the doing of subversive acts. This is one of the main points over which there are differences of opinion on the loyalty program. What are subversive ideas, and how does one prove that a person holds them if he never performs a subversive act? This important point in honest discussions of the loyalty program was never touched upon by the broadcast, which begged the question by drawing in the totally irrelevant spy angle.

By confusing espionage activities and loyalty attitudes in this way, and by leaving out all the real doubts honest people have about the working of the loyalty program, this broadcast suggested a frightening idea. If Government employes may have their attitudes of loyalty dealt with in such a rough-and-ready fashion, why should Judy Coplon, accused of an actual seditious act, be given "due process"? Why not just off with her head? That way lies totalitarianism—and on this point the broadcast never touched.

PETTY BUREAUCRAT.
Arlington.

Milk Sanitation

Ridiculously upgraded and inflated standards make the interstate milkshed a protected monopoly. These restrictive standards were imposed when modern refrigeration was not the rule. Poorly refrigerated milk was a health menace. Home deliveries were a practical necessity. Unless processed and consumed immediately the rapid rise in bacterial count meant disease.

The modern picture is radically different. Once processed and packaged, milk can be kept fresh and wholesome for days. Many consumers purchase and store their milk supply days ahead This consumer practice and pattern is both sensible and healthy. Milk distributors recognize its safety by delivering milk every other day.

The present policies of our Health Department make it the ally of both the monopoly and the irresponsible strikers. It encourages and protects their use of obsolete health regulations as economic weapons. Health Department police powers are used to outlaw competing milk that is safe for other communities. We have the absurdity of local health regulations superseding and vetoing national standards of public health. Yet this is the Nation's Capital.

Congress can break both strike and monopoly by removing unfair trade barriers to qualified competition disguised as health regulations. Modern refrigeration makes such unlawful restrictions upon interstate commerce a conspiracy against the public welfare.

Handicapping Hired Help

By Malvina Lindsay

Citizens' Boomerang

"SO YOU'RE going to Washington to be a bureaucrat?" remarked the taxpayer to the young man.

"I'm going to work for the Government. I prepared in college for public service."

"Oh college! You're going to be one of those Government smart guys!"

"But I understand your firm hires only college graduates—smart guys."

"Yes, but what's the use to waste college brains working for bureaucrats?"

"You mean working for the people of the United States. It's all right then to get the smartest guys you can for industry, but not to work for you and me?"

"Well, they're all a bunch of inefficient loafers there in Washington."

"Would you mind," said the young man respectfully, "giving me your source for that information? I'd like to check it."

"That was what some Congressmen said the other day. The papers were full of it. And when Art Jenks and his family were there to see the cherry blossoms, they said that all the Government workers did was to sit around and drink cokes."

"They checked, of course, on those people drinking cokes?

"Well, Sylvester Speel said the same thing on the radio the other night. It's a big mess down there. Look how they're running things!"

"The Government."

"But aren't we the Government? Don't we send representatives to Congress?"

"What can you expect of a bunch of politicians?"

"It's our fault if we don't expect something. They're working for us.

"It's not Congress so much. It's those others. They're a bunch of ciphers, chess men, robots. No initiative, drive, ambition, I tell you there's no future in Government."

"I've heard that before. And if we keep parroting those things they'll come true. Nobody will go into Government but the potential chess men."

"'Them?'"

"These spies and saboteurs."

"But I thought you said the departments were full of chessmen, cogs, ciphers——"

"It's all the same. Them and all these perverts."

"But the loyalty tests don't show——"

"It's what Henderson Rant said on the radio the other night. He's good! He really takes the hide off of people."

"Besides," protested the young man, "the investigation of perverts hasn't started."

"But some Congressman said—I read it somewhere—the government was full of 'em."

"But these things have been denied by those in a position to know. Haven't you read the follow-up stories in the papers?"

"I DON'T have time for reading, except the headlines. Anyway Sylvester Speel said—no, it was Henderson Rant—well somebody said they were bankrupting and betraying the country."

"Which 'they?'"

"The bureaucrats. I tell you, the Government's no place for a young man who wants to get ahead.'

"What's the use of getting ahead, if we have no country left? That's just what we'll have if citizens go on sniping at and belittling their hired help. Besides, didn't Cyrus Ching, Federal labor mediator, who's had wide experience in private industry, say that man for man Government workers were superior to those outside?"

"But what about all these subversives?"

"The worst subversives in the country now are those who are undermining the morale of Government employes with their loose talk. It's hard enough to find men who will take big jobs and the abuse that goes with them. But, at least, these carry honor. What kind of people will fill up the ranks? The weaklings and misfits. The rabbity little people looking only for paychecks.

"If this keeps up" continued the young man earnestly, "it's going to boomerang on the American people. You haven't scared me out, but a lot of young people in college will think twice before they train for public service. You wouldn't hire a man for your firm and constantly tell him he was a dumb cluck, a thief or a traitor. Well, you waste your tax dollars when you break down the spirit of those you hire to run your Government. And the Government is like a restaurant, grocery or anything else—only as good as the people who run it."

Cain's Filibuster

Senator Harry P. Cain of Washington State has performed his annual peroration against rent control. He has once again demonstrated that he merits a national news magazine's recent description of him as one of the 10 most useless members of the Senate. As a registered voter of the Senator's home State I am ashamed to admit my infinitesimal part in heaving him into his present high position.

It is unfortunate that Mr. Cain is not up for reelection this year. I, for one, would like to see if he had the courage to preach those arguments of the real estate lobby to the citizenry of his home town, Tacoma, Wash. If he escaped rotten tomatoes it would surprise me.

Split In The GOP

By Marquis Childs

Dewey Leads The Moderates

RECENTLY, off the record, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey spoke out about the Republican Party. He spoke with the self-confident fluency that has been at one and the same time an asset and a handicap.

Childs

He said it was perfectly obvious that the Republican Party was split straight down the middle. On the one hand was the old guard that looked with considerable suspicion on the late William McKinley as a little too far to the left.

On the other hand were the moderates who felt as he, Dewey, feels. That social security is an inevitable necessity in a modern industrial state. A hopeful young Republican in his audience expressed the view that what the party really needed was a statement of beliefs embodying for the most part the moderate position.

"Some years ago," said Dewey, "I directed the formation of a strategy committee with exactly that in mind. But I very soon made a discovery. I discovered that the party doesn't want a statement of beliefs because that would hamper the opportunity for unlimited opportunism."

On foreign policy Dewey was somewhat more guarded, although he did not conceal his belief that the tactics of Senator McCarthy had been deeply disruptive within the GOP. By innuendo and sarcasm, of which he is a master, Dewey paid his respects to Republican isolationists and ultra-nationalists in Congress. He singled out Senator Malone of Nevada as a cardinal example.

THIS IS partly, of course, what the Governor said in more circuitous language in his series of lectures at Princeton University in the spring. It was what Dewey's friend and protege, Senator Irving Ives of New York, undertook to tell the annual convention of the Association of New York State Young Republicans not long ago.

Ives pointed out that a recent Gallup Poll showed that two out of every three new voters with party affiliations outside the South were in the Democratic Party. Unless this trend is reversed, with a positive stand, Ives warned, the Republican Party will go the way of the Whigs and the Federalists, into oblivion.

What happened after that illustrates far better than any speech the dilemma of the Republicans A resolution had been prepared going all out in praise of the "dynamic and yeoman efforts of Senator McCarthy." Ives, who had only two days before signed Senator Margaret Chase Smith's "Declaration of Conscience," worked hard behind scenes to get this modified. So did delegates opposed to McCarthyism.

After a floor fight a compromise resolution was finally passed approving "the action instituted by Senator McCarthy and the spirit in which it was brought." As a concession to the opposition, the resolution also called for a nonpartisan commission to investigate suspected security leaks in the State Department. Instead of adopting a platform with specific planks, the convention sanctioned an almost meaningless declaration of principles. If they had set out to do it, these "Young Republicans" could hardly have underscored Ives' warning more effectively.

AS FOR Dewey, he has handled himself with special adroitness since his defeat of November, 1948. In view of that crushing blow, he might well have lapsed into sullen obscurity. But he has continued to be an able Governor of the most populous State in the Union. And at the same time he has held his place in his party as one of the three or four most influential leaders of the moderate, anti-isolationist wing.

Dewey's discoverey of the split in the GOP is not precisely new. It was one of his chief handicaps in the '48 campaign as he was well aware going from State to State and meeting up with candidates who made some strange noises.

Another handicap was the bursitis in his shoulder. This is a most painful malady and it was particularly painful to a political candidate moving through crowds of well-wishers, all of them anxious to shake his hand. The handshake often produced a pain like an acute toothache. With Dewey it has proved a stubborn ailment, refusing to respond to customary treatment.

Whatever his ultimate personal fate, the Governor will continue to be a force in the Republican Party. There are many reasons why this should be so. An obvious one is his great political astuteness. And another is his awareness, as chief executive of an extraordinarily complicated commonwealth, that this is the midtwentieth century and not the pre-McKinley era.

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney D., Wyo.), leading author of the ill, said the message bore out what he has contended right long—that under present law here is no bar to freight absorp- ion or delivered prices as such.

"I am glad that in his veto mes- age Mr. Truman has enabled me o say to the business community hat, in my opinion, they need not ear adverse action by Government gencies when, by individual ac- ion, they engage in competitive roduction, distribution and sale f the commodities in which they eal."

Senator Paul Douglas (D., Ill.), who led the Senate fight on both he Kerr bill and the socalled bas- ng point measure, said only:

"The President has once more umped into the breach to protect he people of the country from nonopoly."

Chairman Wright Patman (D., Tex.) of the House small business ommittee called the veto "the reatest victory the plain people f this country have had for a ong time."

The bill commenced its stormy assage through Congress two ears ago after a 1948 Supreme Court decision in the Cement In- titute case caused confusion in many industries.

The legislation sought to clear p all doubt that a manufacturer cting without collusion could ab- orb freight costs and sell at de- ivered prices. It further per- nitted them to quote special prices f they acted "in good faith" to neet a competitor's terms.

Mr. Truman said the bill was ot only unnecessary and confus- ng but might be subject to years f "complex litigation" in the ourts. He said this "slow and difficult" process not only might mpair effective enforcement of he anti-trust statutes, but en- ourage some individuals to re- ume illegal practices.

Even more serious, he said, "is he risk that this bill would eventu- lly be interpreted to reduce the rotection afforded the public by he anti-trust laws."

Recent court decisions and state- ments by the Federal Trade Com- mission have made it quite clear hat under present law there is "no ar to freight absorption or de- ivered prices as such," he said.

"I recognize that businessmen have been concerned lest they be penalized for perfectly sensible and appropriate competitive ac- tion," the President told Congress. "I believe that their concern is unwarranted. If in the future there should be clear evidence to the contrary, the law should, of course, be changed."

Mrs. Thaden, Roanoke, Places 3d in Race

Mrs. Louise Thaden of Roanoke, Va., placed third in the "Powder Puff" women's air race from Montreal to West Palm Beach, Fla., the United Press reported last night.

Mrs. Thaden was accompanied by her daughter, Patsy, 16.

Airline stewardess Betty Haas, of Scarsdale, N. Y., placed first in the 1475 mile race, according to unofficial results, and Peggy Lennox, of Hollywood, Fla., was second.

Lochner Holds Baynton Unfit For Alien Post

President Truman's nomination of Harold I. Baynton to be head of the Alien Property Office ran into the ghost of Nazi Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels yesterday.

Louis P. Lochner, veteran former Berlin correspondent for the Associated Press, told the Senate Judiciary Committee, which is considering the appointment, that Baynton is "unfit" for the post.

He said Bayntor, as acting chief of the office, is trying to "seize" the profits of the book, "The Goebbels Diaries," which Lochner edited.

The writer, who has filed suit in Federal District Court here to collect $131,000 in royalties, said Baynton also forced him to write a foreword to the book which cast doubt on its authenticity and helped Russian propagandists.

Police Chief at Binghamton Indicted on Bribery Charge

Binghamton, N. Y., June 16 (AP).—Binghamton's police chief was indicted today on charges of bribery, accepting unlawful fees and conspiring with gamblers.

The Broome County grand jury accused Michael Hanifin, 57, of helping to organize and control gambling in this industrial city, and of taking alleged payoff "cuts" totaling $8850.

The grand jury also indicted a suspended head of the vice squad and two other policemen on similar charges, as well as 14 men described by District Attorney Robert O. Brink as Binghamton's leading gamblers. Thirteen of them were charged with offering bribes.

Robinson Is Associate Counsel in Crime Quiz

George S. Robinson was named associate counsel of the special Senate crime investigating committee yesterday by Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.), chairman.

Robinson has served as an attorney in the Justice and Interior Departments, the Maritime Commission and the Air Force.

White House Snubs Wright And Thurmond

White House officials said yesterday that Governors J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and Fielding Wright of Mississippi have been left off a list of Democratic Governors invited to a luncheon Thursday with President Truman.

There was no explanation, but it was obvious the snub was because the two Governors ran on a State Rights Presidential ticket against the President in 1948.

The luncheon was first set for today, but has been postponed until Thursday.

The Democratic National Committee said the postponement was to avoid any charge that the President was trying to influence the annual Governors Conference politically.

The conference is to begin at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Sunday and last through Wednesday.

Democratic Chairman William Boyle suggested the get-together. Aides said he recommended that Thurmond and Wright should not be included.

Capital Store Sales Up 11% During Week

By S. Oliver Goodman

Department store sales in Washington increased 11 percent in the week ended June 10 as compared with the like week last year, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported last night.

That was one of the best showings this year. Local sales so far in 1950 generally have averaged about 2 percent less than the corresponding 1949 period.

For the four weeks ended June 10, local store sales were reported 1 percent improved over the same 1949 period.

Regionally, the Fifth Federal Reserve District displayed a sales gain of 9 percent for the latest week and showed no change for the four-week period.

Nationally, the Federal Reserve Board noted a climb of 5 percent in sales for the week.

Meanwhile, store executives were studying proposals to expand research as a means of increasing profits. The proposals emerged from this week's meeting here of the Controllers Congress of the National Retail Dry Goods Association.

Charles B. Dulcan, executive vice president and general manager of The Hecht Co. in Washington, suggested that "bigger appropriations by the stores would help dig up facts, methods and techniques to improve retail distribution and increase retail profits."

Dulcan called attention to a survey by the University of Pittsburgh which sought to find reasons why customers walk out of stores without buying. The survey indicated that a department store selling 30 million dollars of goods a year could increase its business $6,500,000 "if management found why this business was walking out."

More research, Dulcan added, would also trim the present high level of store costs.

EXERCISES: Washington Chapter, American Savings and Loan Institute, will award 122 certificates and diplomas at annual graduation exercises tonight in the Shoreham Hotel. Stuart Thompson, chapter head, said that special honors will be given to eight students who have completed a five-year course in savings and loan management. Guest speaker will be Carl Distelhorst, national educational director of the institute.

ODD LOTS: National Bank of Washington stock went ex-rights yesterday on the Washington Stock Exchange and th bid price correspondingly went down to $300 a share from $325. The rights were issued in connection with a recapitalization previously announced . . . The duPont company's new 22-million-dollar Orlon plant near Camden, S. C., is reported ready to go into production . . . The International Home Furnishings Summer Show will open Monday in Chicago for a 10-day run . . . Fire losses in the United States for May were estimated at $58,765,000, an increase of 8.5 percent over same 1949 month . . . Armstrong Cork Co. has reduced prices of its standard felt-base ruge and floor coverings about 6 percent.

NO BIDS: The Southern Railway Co. withdrew its application for authority to issue $10,000,000 of new ,rst mortgage bonds at this time. The company notified the Interstate Commerce Commission that no bids had been received on the proposed issue. Bids were recently invited to determine the interest rate. The company had proposed to use proceeds of the sale, along with treasury cash, to meet a January 1, 1951, maturity of $12,474,000 of outstanding 4 percent mortgage bonds.

UPSURGE: Washington Gas Light Co. yesterday reported a 27.5 percent increase in May sales of natural gas over the same 1949 month. The month's volume was 14,101,737 therms, against 11,057,096 therms, a gain of 24 percent over the like 1949 period. Continued unseasonably cold wheather this spring and the increased number of customers were factors.

Newspapers Take Lion's Share of 1949 Ad Outlays

Newspapers led the nation in advertising sales last year, the magazine Printers' Ink said yesterday.

A survey showed that total volume of all advertising amounted to $5,202,200,000 in 1949, an increase of 7 percent over 1948, and a new all-time high.

Newspapers took the largest share of that total, 36.6 percent, which was an increase of 8.9 percent over 1948. Total newspaper advertising sales were $1,905,000,000.

Direct mail advertising accounted for the second largest share of the total, 14.5 percent. The total of $755,600,000 was 9.6 percent higher than the previous year.

Radio was the third largest segment with 12.2 percent of the total. Radio advertising amounted to $633,800,000, an increase of 2.7 percent over 1948.

Magazines fell behind the previous year by 3.9 percent, farm papers advanced .5 percent, business papers were down 1.1 percent, outdoor advertising fell .8 percent, and the miscellaneous group advanced 6.8 percent.

New York Cotton

New York, June 16 (AP).—Cotton futures closed 70 cents a bale higher to 30 cents lower today. Trading was active with early strength stemming from a revival of active demand for cotton goods extending through the second half of the year. Persistent trade buying and some replacement demand extended gains to almost $1 a bale but the market reacted sharply on a late flurry of profit taking and hedging which found support lacking.

Churches Schedule Vacation Schools

Vacation Bible schools will begin in more than 100 Greater Washington churches during the next few weeks

Te the schools, boys and girls will enjoy a program of recreation craftwork and religious instruction under trained leaders.

This year, for the first time, the Washington Council of Church Women will carry on its "doll adoption" plan in connection with 14 of the church schools in crowded neighborhoods.

Members of the council have made and dressed hundreds of dolls, which will be given to little girls at the centers. In order to "adopt" a doll, the children must sign a "good mother code" on which are listed some of the qualities a good mother has.

May Get Dolls to Keep

Throughout the summer the children, many of whom have never had dolls, will care for their "adopted children." If they have kept them clean and tidy, they will be given the dolls to keep.

By means of the dolls, the Council of Church Women hope to teach the children habits of cleanliness and proper child care. In the years since the program was launched, they have found that not only the children, but also their families, have gained from the adoption program.

Adoption centers will be at Twelfth Street Christian Central Presbyterian, Jones Methodist, Temple Baptist, Wilson Memorial Methodist, John Wesley A. M. E. Zion, Calvary Baptist, Ward Methodist, Reformation Lutheran, Chinese Community, Shiloh Baptist, and Trinity Methodist Churches.

No War Among Lions, Club President Says

Roanoke, Va., June 16 (AP). — Lions International President Walter C. Fisher, today called for "a new way of life — a new fashion that men will follow to get rid of pressure groups and make war "unfashionable."

"There never has been war between two countries in which we have Lions," Fisher said. "Lions the sensible—I pray God they stay so." Fisher's remarks were in an off-the-cuff address to the twenty-seventh annual Virginia State Lions convention which opened here today at Hotel Roanoke. He is from Ontario, Canada.

4 Ministers Appointed to Positions Here

Appointments of an associate pastor and three assistants were announced by Greater Washington churches this week.

They will serve at Calvary Methodist, Metropolitan Baptist, Christ Episcopal and St. Paul's Episcopal in Alexandria.

The Rev. Dr. Eddy L. Ford will become associate pastor at Calvary Methodist Church, 1459 Columbia rd. nw. He began his career in the ministry in the Foochow Conference in China in 1922.

Formerly at Foundary Church

He served as assistant pastor at Foundry Church, here, from 1929 to 1940, as pastor at Ridgeville, Md., and retired after six years at the Strawbridge, Md., Methodist Church.

The Rev. William A. Doverspike will become assistant to the Rev. Dr. J. Walter Carpenter, new pastor of Metropolitan Baptist, 6th and A sts. ne. He graduated this month from the Columbia Bible College, Columbia, S. C.

New assistant to the Rev. Thomas A. Frazer, jr., at St. Paul's, Alexandria, will be the Rev. John C. Henry, who has been rector of the Church of the Epiphany, 2001 North Quincy st., Arlington, since 1948.

Western High Graduate

Mr. Henry is a graduate of Western High School in Washington and the Virginia Military Institute. For nine years he was a secretary in the executive office of the White House.

At the end of the war he resigned from his post with the War Production Board to enter the Virginia Theological Seminary in Alexandria. He will preach his first sermon at St. Paul's on July 16.

The Rev. Arthur Hugh Underwood, who was ordained an Episcopal deacon on Wednesday, will become assistant at Cirist Church, 3100 O st. nw. He will assist the Rev. John R. Anschutz in parish work and will be director of religious education.

Born in France, he graduated from Phillips Exeter Academy, Yale University and Berkeley Divinity School, New Haven, Conn. He served with the Army Air Forces for three years during the war.

Lithuanian Genocide Day to Be Celebrated

Lithuanian Genocide Day will be observed at 10 a. m. Sunday at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, 1315 Eighth st nw.

Members of the diplomatic corps, Government officials and others have been invited by the Lithuanian Legation to attend the service mourning the deportation of more than 40,000 Lithuanians to remote parts of Siberia by the Soviet Government on June 15, 16 and 17, 1941. Mass will be celebrated by the Rev. Joseph Venckus, S.J., a refugee priest on the Georgetown University faculty. The sermon wil lbe preached by the Rev. Joseph E. Gedra.

Church Events

Dr. Ludwig Metzger, chief mayor of Darmstadt, Germany, will share the pulpit with the Rev. Dr. J. Hillman Hollister at 9:30 and 11 a.m. at Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, Chevy Chase Circle.

Dr. Metzger, who is visiting the United States to study local government, is a member of the board of St. John's parish, which was adopted by the Chievy Chase church more than a year ago.

Children's Day and Promotion Day will be marked at 9:30 a.m. in the parish hall of Chevy Chase Methodist Church, 6401 Connecticut ave. nw. The morning service at 11 o'clock will be in charge of college students.

The Rev. Dr. Carl Heath Kopf will conclude his sermon series on "The Seven Stages of Life" at 11 a. m. at First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw., when he speaks on "O World Too Wide" and "Sans Everything."

Chimes in memory of the Rev. Dr. Oscar J. Randall will be dedicated at 11 a.m. at Potomac Heights Community Church, Cathedral ave. and MacArthur blvd. nw.

Dr. Randall was first pastor of Potomac Heights Church from 1923 until 1928 and returned to the full-time pastorate for a short time after the present building was erected. He died in 1949.

One-hundred and two couples married by the Rev. John T. Coburn during his pastorate have been invited to a service at 8 p.m. at Fifth Baptist Church, 609 E st. sw. He will speak on "The Woman's Place in the Home."

Ground for the Tifereth Agudath Ohavay Sholom congregation synagogue will be broken at 2 p.m. at Tuckerman st. between 13th st. and Piney Branch rd. nw.

Speakers at the ceremony will include the Rev. Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, Congressman Brooks Hays (D., Ark.) and Arthur Liverhant of the Israeli Embassy.

Dr. Leon M. Wright of the Howard University School of Religion will be guest speaker at a Father's Day service at Mount Zion Methodst Church, 1334 29th st. nw.

"The Gambling Evil" will be discussed by Robert S. Ernst at 8 p. m. at Memorial Evangelical United Brethren Church, 1700 North Capitol st.

Church Plans 40th Birthday Celebration

A series of special services beginning Friday will mark the fortieth anniversary of the founding of Wallace Memorial United Presbyterian Church, 712 Randolph st. nw.

At 7:45 p. m. Friday there will be a fellowship service at the church when messages will be read from several of the missionaries who are former members.

On Saturday the annual church and Bible School picnic will take place at 3 p. m. at Jessup Blair Park, Georgia and Alaska aves., Silver Spring.

The Rev. Dr. C. E. Hawthorne, who was pastor of the church from 1924 to 1848, will preach at the anniversary service at 11 a. m. on Sunday, June 25. He is now pastor of a church in Clarinda, Iowa.

The congregation of Wallace Memorial Church was organized on June 20, 1910, with 20 charter members. Four of them are still living and attend the church. The present minister is the Rev. Donald C. Irwin, who was named to the pastorate in January, 1949.

Lithuanians to Mark Date of Deportations

Members of the American-Lithuanian Society of Washington have been invited by Povilas Zadeikis, Minister of Lithuania, to a mass commemorating the ninth anniversary of the mass deportations in their native land, at 10 a. m. Sunday at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, 8th and N sts. nw.

Catholics to Give 'Peter's Pence' Gifts Sunday

Annual Peter's Pence collections will be taken in all Roman Catholic churches in the Archdiocese of Washington on Sunday.

Funds raised by the collection will be used to meet requests for food, clothing and medicine received by the Vatican.

In a letter calling attention to the collections, the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, declared that Pope Pius XII is "not ashamed to beg for the poor and downtrodden."

He urged that when the collection is taken Catholics "remember the blessings Almighty God has showered upon our beloved America and upon each of us individually, and to remember also that in Rome, the heart of Christendom, the Spiritual Father of all of us needs your loyal, generous and unstinted help to save those who, in their distress, might easily be allured by the false promises of the Communists."

Congregational Temple To Have Special Music

Because of special music, the morning service at Lincoln Congregational Temple, 11th and R sts. nw., Sunday will begin at 10:45 a. m. instead of 11 a. m.

Gounod's cantata "Gallia" and the anthem "150th Psalm" will be sung, and the Rev. Robert W. Brooks will speak on "An Example of Courage and Faith."

Washington Fellowship Plans Service at Farm

Members of the Washington Fellowship will combine an outing with their June interracial and interfaith worship service Sunday.

It will be at Quaker Farm, 1 mile north of Spencerville, Md. The service will be at 5:30 p. m. at Calvary Congregational Church, Spencerville, with the Rev. Franklin M. R. Brogden, director of Franklinton Institute, Franklinton, N. C., speaking.

British Clerics Will Preach At Cathedral

Guest preachers from England, Egypt and India will speak from the pulpit of the Washington Cathedral during the next four months.

First of the guests will be the Rev. R. D. Say, secretary of the British Council of Churches, who will give the sermon at 11 a. m. Sunday.

He is one of 16 English clergymen who will visit the United States as exchange preachers during the summer to study American church life.

Mr. Say is a consultant to the Central Committee of the World Council of Churches, and after his four-week stay in the States will attend a meeting of the committee in Toronto.

He was one of the official delegates of the Church of England to the first assembly of the World Council of Churches at Amsterdam in 1948. A former curate of St. Martins-in-the-Field, Trafalgar Square, London, Mr. Say is now serving as a member of the religious advisory council of the British Broadcasting Co.

Other guest preachers at the cathedral during the summer will include the Rev. Oliver S. Tomkins, of London, associate general secretary of the World Council of Churches, who will speak on June 25, the Right Rev. Geoffrey Francis Allen, All Saints Cathedral, Cairo, Egypt, July 30, and the Most Rev. Arthur Michael Hollis, moderator of the church of South India.

Presbyterians To Raise Funds For New Building

A religious education and administration building will be erected on the property of the Old Presbyterian Meeting House on South Fairfax st., Alexandria.

After the 11 a. m. service Sunday the congregation will name committees to raise funds for the building and choose an architectural plan. The proposed building will face the Flounder House, 18th-century building which the church plans to restore, and will conform to the style of the house and the historic meeting house.

The church was erected in 1774 and was in continuous use until 1889, when it was closed after a split in the Presbyterian Church. Last year the church was reopened by its present congregation.

Much of the restoration work on the church has been done by the congregation. The building is open daily from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. and on Sunday from 2 to 5 p. m.

200 From District Planning to Attend Youth Conferences

Two hundred young people from the Episcopal Diocese of Washington will attend annual youth conferences at Shrine Mount, Orkney Springs, Va., June 18-24 and June 25-July 1.

Theme of both conferences will be "The Faith of the Church." Classes will be given each day on preparation for marriage, vocational choices, the church in society, and alternatives to Christianity.

The Rev. C. Randolph Mengers, rector of St. Columba's Church, 42d and Albemarle sts. nw., will be dean of the first conference, and Canon Charles Martin, headmaster of St. Alban's School for Boys, will be chaplain.

Dean of the second conference will be the Rev. John R. Anschutz, rector of Christ Church, Georgetown. The Rev. John P. Stevens, rector of St. Patrick's Church, Foxhall rd., will be chaplain.

Two Escape From Fairfax Prison Camp

Two young "trusties" who would have been eligible for parole within 30 days casually strolled away from Virginia State Prison Camp 30, near Fairfax, Va., yesterday.

They were identified in a lookout sent out by prison authorities as John V. Measles, 25, white, 5 feet, 9 inches tall, weighing 164 pounds, with dark hair and blue eyes, and C. P. Kenney, 26, white, 5 feet, 10 inches tall, weighing 152 pounds, and also having dark hair and blue eyes.

Both were clad in brown prison uniforms.

Sergt. M. C. Russell, in charge of the prison camp, said the two men walked away about 7 a. m. and their absence was noted less than an hour later.

An all-day search of the area with armed posses and bloodhounds was to no avail.

Both men were sentenced from Fauquier County, Va., to three-year terms for housebreaking and had served about nine months, Russell said.

Both applied for parole and a favorable reply was expected momentarily from the State Parole Board, according to the sergeant.

Silver Spring Dance

Lodge No. 658, Loyal Order of Moose in Silver Spring, will hold a chicken supper and dance tonight at 7 p. m. at 926 Wayne ave., Silver Spring. Proceeds will send a needy Montgomery County child to summer camp.

Church Picnic Sunday

Members of Takoma Lutheran Church, 7th and Dahlia sts. nw., will have a congregational picnic beginning at 2:30 p.m. Sunday at area 11, Rock Creek Park.

Lutherans Ask God's Guidance For Convention

Prayers will be said in Lutheran Churches of the Missouri Synod Sunday for Divine guidance at the denomination's triennial convention at Milwaukee June 21-30.

Five greater Washington pastors and two laymen plan to attend the meetings.

The pastors are the Rev. William F. Bruening, pastor of Christ Church, 16th and Gallatin sts. nw., the Rev. Dr. Frederic Wenchel, pastor emeritus of Christ Church, the Rev. Edwin E. Pieplow, pastor of Trinity, Mount Rainier, the Rev. Paul Kavasch, pastor of Our Saviour, 9th and South Taylor sts., Arlington, and the Rev. Wilner D. Mensing of Immanuel, Alexandria.

Ralph Gran, a member of Bethlehem Church, 2407 Minnesota ave. se., official lay delegate, and John W. Boehne, a member of Calvary Silver Spring, will also attend.

Convention sessions will be held at Concordia College, a preparatory school for pastors of the synod, with the Rev. Dr. John W. Behnken, president of the synod, presiding.

One of the important issues to be considered at the meeting will be Lutheran unity. A committee from the Missouri Synod has been working with a committee from the American Lutheran Church on a "Common Confession of Faith" for the two groups. Delegates will vote on the proposed confession, which will be considered later by the ALC's convention.

Construction At Children's Is Contracted

Children's Hospital officials yesterday signed construction contracts for a long-planned renovation and rebuilding program.

The contracts, totaling $2,040,000, were awarded to the Charles H. Tompkins Co.

An additional $460,000 will be spent for architects' fees, equipment and other items, said James H. Lemon, president of the hospital's board of directors.

The contract provides for replacement of the antiquated W st. building by a new structure, and extensive alterations to other sections of the hospital plant. The work is being financed by $1,380,000 raised in the public campaign; $720,000 in Federal hospital construction aid funds, and $400,000 borrowed from the Riggs National Bank.

First Baptist Church To Honor Dr. Ruden

Members of First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw., will honor their pastor, the Rev. Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, at a reception at 8 p. m. Friday at the church.

Dr. Pruden was elected president of the American Baptist Convention (formerly Northern Baptist) at its annual meeting in Boston in May.

County Volunteers

7 Firemen Held for Jury In Arson Case

Seven Prince Georges County volunteer firemen were held for grand jury action yesterday in connection with the setting of 12 fires in unoccupied dwellings and barns.

The total of 28 charges arose from a series of mysterious fires in the Forestville-Morningside vicinity between April 18 and May 31.

Held for the grand jury by Judge Alan Bowie in Marlboro Police Court were William D. Tippett, 20, of Suitland, on 12 charges involving all of the incidents; Willy D. Grusholt, 19, of Forestville, four charges; Arthur James Stacey, 22, of Parkland, two charges; Thomas A. Marlowe, 18, of Suitland, two charges; Joseph Baker, 16, and Ford Baker, 14, brothers, of District Heights, one charge and three charges, and Clifford Brown, 16, of Morningside, four charges.

Bond was set at $500 for each offense.

After the hearing, Claire M. Loughmiller, president of the Morningside Volunteer Fire Department, told reporters he found kerosene in the 400-gallon water tank of one pumper trucks. Had the kerosene been sprayed on a fire a serious explosion might have resulted, he said.

4th Polio Case Reported; Up One Over Last June 15

Washingtn's fourth case of poliomyelitis this year—as against three cases this time in 1949—was reported yesterday by the District Health Department.

Health officials said the victim was a 6-year-old boy living in the northwest section of the city.

This was the first case reported since the start of the warm weather, health officials stated. Others had been reported in January, February and early May. One of the earlier victims was an out-of-town resident stricken while passing through Washington, they said.

Discussion Set Sunday

Albert R. Burkhardt, summer student assistant at Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas cir. nw., will lead a discussion on "The Christian Attitude Toward Labor and Management" at 6:45 p. m. Sunday at the Lutheran Church Center, 736 Jackson pl. nw.

Mrs. J. N. Code Dies at Home Of Friend

Mrs. John Matthew Code, 78, long active in charitable and religious work, died yesterday at the home of a friend, Lyle Kennedy, of 917 18th st. nw., whom she and her husband were visiting.

She was born Helen Frances Kennedy in Keokuk, Iowa, where requiem mass and burial will be held Monday.

Mrs. Code was a member of St. Matthews Cathedral where she attended services while in Washington. For many years she was president of the Ladies of Charity in Keokuk and she held several offices in the National Council of Catholic Women in the Diocese of Davenport, Iowa.

In 1935, she was commended for her interest in the sick and poor during a private audience with Pope Pius XI. Two years ago, when she and Code celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary, they received the Apostolic Benediction and personal greetings from Pope Pius XII.

Besides her husband, she is survived by two sons: the Rev. Dr. Joseph B. Code, formerly of Washington and now religious councilor at Manhattan College, N. Y., and Donald H. Code, of Keokuk.

Judge Gray to Address County Soroptomists

Mrs. Wolfe's Burial Rites Held Here

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Ryan Wolfe, 64, formerly of Chevy Chase, Md., were held at 2 p. m. yesterday at the Warner E. Pumphrey funeral home, 8434 Georgia ave., Silver Spring. Burial was in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mrs. Wolfe, the wife of Stanley L. Wolfe, retired Internal Revenue Bureau engineer, died Tuesday in Quakertown, Pa., where they had lived on an estate for the past 10 years. She had suffered a heart ailment since September.

A native of Philadelphia, Mrs. Wolfe had moved to Catonsville, Md., when a girl, and to Chevy Chase 36 years ago.

In Chevy Chase she had lived at 6401 Maple ave., the home now of her daughter, Mrs. William E. Shannon and her husband, president of Shannon & Luchs Co.

Mrs. Wolfe, who is also survived by a brother, Gerald Ryan, of 100 Dale dr., Silver Spring, was a charter member of the Chevy Chase Woman's Club, and had been an active member of the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church while living here.

Joseph Kamp Gets 4 Months In 1944 Case

By the United Press

Joseph P. Kamp, of New York, executive vice president of the Constitutional Educational League, was jailed for four months yesterday for refusing to answer congressional questions in 1944.

Kamp, who also is in trouble with the House Lobby Investigating Committee, was convicted of refusing to answer questions by the House Campaign Expenditures Committee in 1944. The Supreme Court recently refused to hear his appeal.

He ran afoul of the lobby investigators last week when he refused to produce his organization's records, charging the committee had no right to demand them.

He was joined in his defiance by Edward A. Rumely, executive secretary of the Committee for Constitutional Government. Merwin K. Hart, president of the National Economic Council, produced his records but demanded they be kept confidential.

Chairman Frank Buchanan (D., Pa.) hinted nothing further would be done to Kamp, however, since he already is in jail.

Rumely, also of New York, will be recalled by the committee probably late next week, and given a chance to purge himself. If he refuses, Buchanan may ask the committee to cite him for contempt. He was cleared of a contempt charge in the 1944 case involving Kamp.

Reservists Sail Today

Naval Reservists of the Potomac River Naval Command Headquarters, and six members of the Fifth Infantry Battalion, Organized Marine Reserve, 120 strong, will sail from the Naval Gun Factory this morning on a month-long training cruise. The trainees will visit Bermuda, and Portugal, in the course of the voyage aboard the U.S.S. Robert F. Keller.

Bums' Snap Cards' Streak At 7 With 7-3 Victory

Brooklyn, June 16 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers scored three unearned runs in the second inning and went on to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals, 7-3 tonight to snap a seven game St. Louis winning streak.

The victory also cut the Cards' first place edge over the runner-up Dodgers to two and one half games.

The Dodgers scored four runs in the second inning off Red Munger with an error by Third Baseman Ed Kazak paving the way for the last three runs.

Peewee Reese singled home the first run with two out. Kazak then booted Preacher Roe's grounder to admit the second. Munger walked Billy Cox and Gene Hermanski followed with a two-run single to left to climax the uprising.

Braves Beat Pirates In 9th Inning, 6-5

Boston, June 16 (AP).—Sam Jethroe's ninth-inning, two-out single drove in the run that enabled long John Sain to chalk up his ninth win of the season for the Boston Braves tonight with a 6-5 decision over the Pittsburgh Pirates. In the top of that frame, Ralph Kiner tied matters with his fourteenth homer of the campaign.

Washington Choice Today In Crew Race

Barietta, Ohio, June 16 (AP).—Good weather and smooth water are promised for tomorrow's big crew race, shifted to the Midwest from the East for the first time.

The current of the coffee-colored Ohio River slowed today, encouraging the 32 crews which will compete in the forty-eighth annual Intercollegiate Rowing Association Regatta.

The scene has shifted from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., to Marietta, but the familiar favorites are still on top—Washington first, then California.

The entry list comprises all of the college crews' "Who's Who" except Yale and Harvard, which compete by themselves. Entered here are: Boston University, California, Columbia, Cornell, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Navy, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Rutgers, Stanford, Syracuse, Washington and Wisconsin. Marietta College was invited to compete, too, but its crew members had already accepted jobs.

M. I. T., winner of the Eastern sprint championship, is expected to provide the chief Eastern challenge to Washington and California, but Cornell and Navy have power between them.

Washington and California have won 10 of the last 12 Poughkeepsie races. California is defending varsity champion, having beaten out Washington last year at Poughkeepsie. Washington edged California in their single meeting this season.

The luck of the draw, however, has resulted in one bad break for the two archi-rivals. Washington is in lane three close to the Ohio bank, and California is lane 10 on the West Virginia side.

In the middle of the river the three best Eastern crews will probably wage a private and heated race of their own—M. I. T. in five, Cornell in six, and Navy in seven.

Eleven boats are entered in the freshman race starting at 2:30 p. m. (EST); nine in the junior varsity at 2:10 p. m. and 12 in the varsity at 4 p. m.

Eastman, Ga., Pitcher Loses Game And Dash to Save Home From Fire

Eastman, Ga., June 16 (AP).—Jim Harden, a relief pitcher for Eastman, finished his game against Jesup last night knowing his house was on fire.

Harden struck out the last man in the Class D Georgia State League game, then with his teammates made a dash in the team's bus for the Harden home, three miles away.

Trotting Races Swing To Laurel Tonight

Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

With harness people evidently feeling that the $2 bettor practically is as sturdy as the standardbred, racing in this area resumes tonight at Laurel after a one-day respite.

Rosecroft Raceway closed out its 20-night session Thursday by passing the $5 million mark in its second season. Exact figure was $5,099,286, an increase of nearly a million dollars over its inaugural season.

Impressive as it sounds, the total still was below Laurel's 1949 figure, $5,274,089. Dick Hutchison, jr., and company feel that they're riding the crest of the harness boom and easily will smash last year's mark.

They're scheduling an ambitious stakes program that includes six $10,000 purses; four for $5000; six for $3000 and eight for $2000. It's a far cry from those $600 features when Laurel pioneered night harness racing in Maryland only two years ago.

Laurel's flat track, steeped in tradition, offered only two races for as much as $7500 at its 12-day spring meeting.

With its midway location that enables it to draw from Baltimore as well as Washington, Laurel figures it's time to go big-time.

A lot of star drivers and stables are going along with it. Guy Crippen, fabulous trot figure, will fly several of his powerful stable to Laurel following the meeting at Santa Anita, Calif.

Crippen, West Allis (Wis.) veteran, will bring his Hambletonian candidate, Lord Steward, who went a mile in 2:03 3-5 on the Santa Anita mile track.

Del Miller, William N. Reynolds' crack driver who led them all at Rosecroft with 21 wins in 42 starts, will get a lot of competition from such as Frank Safford, Harry Pownall and Gib White, the latter the son of famed Ben White.

At the moment, 18 Hambletonian eligibles are listed for Laurel stakes and a half dozen pacers who later will race in the rich Little Brown Jug.

One big difference between racing at Rosecroft and Laurel will be eight different fields for the eight races at Laurel. Two-dash events were the rule at the Oxon Hill oval.

Yankees Recall Mize, Martin

St. Louis, June 16 (AP).—The New York Yankees today recalled First Baseman Johnny Mize and Second Baseman Billy Martin from their Kansas City farm of the American Association.

Mize, who was sent down to work out a sore throwing arm, has been throwing fairly hard with Kansas City, the Yankees said. He is needed by the parent club to fill in at first for Tommy Henrich. Henrich has been troubled by a bad knee.

Cards to Give Gardella Release

New York, June 16 (AP).—Fred Seigh, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, said tonight Danny Gardella would be given his outright release from the organization.

Gardella said last night in Houston he was "paid something" to drop his $300,000 suit against organized baseball last fall. Saigh insisted he knew nothing of any such payment.

Bogart Wins But Gardner Loses in Golf

Baltimore, June 16 (AP).—Jim Gardner of Washington, finalist the past two years, was bounced out today in the second round of the Maryland State Amateur golf championship.

Gardner was beaten 3 and 2 by Ray Heins of Mount Pleasant in the only big upset of the round.

Advancing with Heins to the quarter-finals to be played tomorrow were Ralph Bogart, the defending champ from Chevy Chase; Jim Wilson, the medalist from Army-Navy golf club; Bill Cole, Mt. Pleasant; Floyd Watts, Rolling rd., and Frank Michalek, Allview.

The semifinals also will be played tomorrow and the finals on Sunday at the Five Farms course.

Gardner, who lost 1-up to Bogart in the finals of 1949 and 1948, was down two holes at the end of nine holes. Heins, the 1946 Baltimore public parks champ, pulled ahead by four holes at the fourteenth and ended the match by halving the sixteenth.

Bogart had to go all the way to down Ed Finnessy of the Country Club of Maryland 2 up. He was 1 up to the eighteenth and won the final hole with a par. The Chevy Chase champ went ahead on the ninth with a 10-foot putt for a par and never was behind.

Pairings for the quarter-finals: Wilson vs. Michalek, Overton vs. Cole, Heins vs. Bogart, Haviland vs. Watts.

Newhouser Trims Bosox 2d Time in 6 Days, 4-1

Detroit, June 16 (AP).—Lefty Hal Newhouser beat the Boston Red Sox for the second time within six days as he pitched and batted the Detroit Tigers to a 4-to-1 decision tonight before 54,086 fans.

Newhouser held the hard-hitting Boston club to nine hits and yielded their lone run in the ninth. He notched eight strikeouts with Johnny Pesky going down swinging four times.

Newhouser's bat played a big part in getting his sixth win as against two losses for his fifth-inning double off Joe Dobson drove in what proved to be the winning run.

The action-paved fifth inning not only broke a scoreless deadlock but also touched off the most heated rhubarb in Briggs Stadium this year.

With one out, Johnny Groth walked and moved to second on Aaron Robinson's single. Dick Kryhoski then forced Robinson at second with Groth scoring as first base umpire Ed McKinley ruled Kryhosgki had beaten the intended double play relay at first base.

That decision touched off a mass protest by the Red Sox with Catcher Birdie Tebbetts, first baseman Walt Dropo and Manager Joe McCarthy the most vociferous. Tebbetts finally was tossed out of the game before the long argument ended.

Kellner Hit in Temple By Line Drive Double, Rushed to Hospital

Cleveland, June 16 (AP).—Alex Kellner, Philadelphia pitcher, was carried off the field on a stretcher tonight after being hit in the left temple with a line drive in the fifth inning of the Athletics' game with the Cleveland Indians.

The blow knocked him out, but he regained consciousness and was hurried to a hospital for an X-ray examination. It could not be determined immediately how serious the injury might be.

Rocky Breaks Hand, LaMotta Bout Is Off

New York, June 16 (AP).—A fractured left hand knocked Rocky Graziano out of a title fight with middleweight champion, Jake LaMotto, today and the promoting International Boxing Club immediately cast about to find a substitute for the June 28 date in the Polo Grounds.

Graziano, the trouble-haunted socker from the East Side, injured his hand in training several days ago but didn't bother to report it, the I. B. C. said. Today the hand bothered him and an X-ray examination showed he had fractured the mitt.

His hand was placed in a cast. He won't be ready to resume training for at least three weeks.

Stuck with the promotion, the I. B. C. said it hoped to get either Ray Robinson, the welterweight champion; Laurent Dauthille, the French contender, or Tiberio Mitri, Italy's undefeated European champion, to substitute for Graziano in a title bout on June 28.

LaMotta, who is training at Kiamesha Lake in the Catskills, heard the bad news while he was playing golf.

He then flubbed a 1-foot putt.

Robinson won Pennsylvania recognition as world middleweight champion by defeating France's Robert Villemain in Philadelphia, June 5. Dauthille is scheduled to meet Tuzo (Kid) Portuguez of Costa Rica in Montreal next Tuesday and Mitri is carded to oppose Joe Rindone in Providence Monday.

Graziano was treated by Dr. H. R. Freisinger at Warwick. Dr. Vincent Nardiello of the New York State Athletic Commission inspected the X-rays at Warwick and confirmed the bad news. Rocky's hand was placed in a cast.

Dr. Nardiello said Graziano wouldn't be able to resume training for at least three weeks.

Dauthille Invited To Replace Rocky

Montreal, June 16 (AP).—Middleweight Laurent Dauthuille of France said through his manager tonight he had been invited to replace Rocky Graziano in a June 28 middleweight title bout with Champion Jake LaMotta at New York.

Andre Barraut, his manager-trainer, said it might be necessary to move the fight date back a few days if the bout is set.

Ray Yields Only 5 Hits; Chicago Gets 7 Runs in 3d

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Chicago, June 16.—Those gentle people, the Nats, turned their other cheek to the White Sox tonight and got slapped again hard. The unfeeling Sox piled into 'em for seven runs in the third inning and won the ball game, 7 to 1.

It was a replica of the seven-run inning the night before by the Browns in St. Louis, with the exception that the victim of tonight's carnage was Steve Nagy whose last victory, incidentally, is virtually lost in antiquity.

Nagy was breezing along with a 1-0 lead when the roof, or its equivalent, fell in on him. One of the first things that happened was a three-run homer by Dave Philley. After that the Sox simply continued to score a lot of runs.

Masi Helps Nats Score

The Nat's own attack consisted chiefly of a passed ball by Catcher Phil Masi of the Sox. That's how they scored their only run, off their erstwhile pal, Ray Scarborough, who was licking 'em on behalf of the White Sox for the second time in a week.

Scarborough gave 'em five hits, no more—and the tail-spinning Nats dropped their 14th game in their last 18 starts. The defeat all but sucked them into sixth place, which they are now escaping by a mere one-game margin over the Chicagos.

6 in Row For Sox

A crowd of 24,026 saw the revitalized Sox annex their sixth straight win.

Scarborough was wild, walking no fewer than 10 batters, and was begging to be taken, but the Nats couldn't nudge him in the clutches and he struck out eight along the way besides being backed by three double plays.

The only item of comfort for Manager Bucky Harris in tonight's proceedings was the pitching of Rookie Bobby Ross from Chattanooga in his maiden showing for the Nats. He came in for some of that seven-run mess in the third inning, but after that he pitched two hit shutout ball to the finish.

The Nats only run off Scar-

Syracuse Lad Wins Thrilling Delaware Steeplechase

Bill Bennings . . .

AT DELAWARE

DEAR FOLKS:

Elkridge, the greatest money-winning jumper of all time, and owner-trainer, Kent Miller, are here. The 12-year-old gelding will be pointed for the $10,000-added Georgetown Steeplechase Handicap next Thursday, and will be one of the choices in the 2-mile test. He was second at Belmont a few weeks ago in the Meadow Brook Handicap in his only start of the year. Elkridge won the Georgetown last year and then came back a week later to set a new course record for 2½ miles. Bred and raised in Maryland, Elkridge was purchased by Miller at a Pimlico auction sale. A son of Mate and Best by Test, the aging gelding was bred by Joseph F. Flanagan, who now serves as steward for the Maryland Racing Commission.—BILL.

Only Five In Field of Nine Finish

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Delaware Park, June 16.—Auburn Farms Syracuse Lad, owned by T. T. Mott, Secretary of State Dean Acheson's neighbor at Sandy Springs, Md., was a surprise winner of the $5000 added National maiden hurdle race featuring the Friday program.

With the course strewn with fallen horses and jockeys, Syracuse Lad came to the finish line a length in front of Brooks Parker's Wunderprinz. A half length farther back C. Mahlon Kline's Rialto to be third.

Syracuse Lad, trained and saddled by Miss Judy Johnson, had only a scattered backing in a crowd of 9000 and returned a $29.90 win mutuel. His time for the course of a mile and three-quarters was 3:03 1-5, the best of the three runnings of the event but well over the track mark of 2:59 4-5 set by Kospal.

Only five of the nine starters reached the finish line while still in competition. Despite the series of spectacular spills, neither jockeys nor horses were injured.

Saughiehall lost his rider on the eighth jump, then, approaching the ninth and final jump, Marcheast slipped on the grass while rounding the turn and fell heavily. Boom Boom fell over Marcheast, and, in the melee, Greens Keeper ran off the course.

The entry of Rialto and Marcheast set most of the early pace, but Syracuse Lad drew even approaching the last hedge and easily outfinished Rialto.

Wunderprinz, however, was moving from last place and coming with a rush. At the last obstacle, he made a poor landing and the miscue probably cost him the race.

Highlight of the earlier half of the program was the riding feat of Darrell Madden, who was astride the winners of the first three races. The veteran booter is making a comeback and was granted his license by the Jockey Club only last week.

His victories were on Ding ($70.60), Woodstone (6.70), and Thistle Me ($46.20).

Newcomb, Swift Indian Miler, Heads Advance Of AAU Stars Coming Here for Nationals

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

INDIAN Jim Newcomb, America's newest mile sensation, breezes into town from Southern California tomorrow, primed for the National A. A. U. track championships Friday and Saturday at College Park.

DON GEHRMANN

Fred Wilt, Don Gehrmann and John Joe Berry, Newcomb is the man to beat for the berth on Yankee teams which will compete this year in England, Finland, Israel, the West Indies and Argentina.

He'll arrive with the rest of the national collegiate champion Trojans, and litle Occidental College, which upset Morgan State and set a mile relay record of 3:10.2 two weeks ago.

Until last week when he clicked off a 4.07.7 mile in winning the Southern Pacific A.A.U. title, Newcomb, a Shawnee-Delaware, was a comparative unknown.

But now, in a field which includes such highly publicized stars as Fred Wilt, Don Gehrmann and John Joe Berry, Newcomb is the man to beat for the berth on Yankee teams which will compete this year in England, Finland, Israel, the West Indies and Argentina.

The same day that he turned in his 4:07.7 mile, Newcomb also ran a swift 9:03 two miles, but lost out by a tenth-of-a-second to Bob McMillan, 20-year-old Occidental sophomore, will also be here.

Ineligible until this week because he is a transfer from Alabama, McMillan will be running his first big race since the 1948 Olympics when he literally made a big splash in London.

A 17-year-old then, McMillan, running on the steeplechases team, tripped over one of the jumps and landed head-first in a small artificial lake. He didn't finish the race.

Occidental, host to the Redskins when they go West to train, is loaded with sprinters, all of them sophs.

There's George McKibben, who runs in 220 in 21.2, which is bettered only by Champ Lloyd LaBeach of Jamaica. And there's Captain Bill Parker, who does the 440 in better than 47 seconds, and has twice beaten defending champ Herb McKenley this year.

And finally, there's 20-year-old Johnny Barnes, the fastest half-miler in the Nation, with the 51.1 time he posted in the Southern Pacific games last week.

Billy Wolfe Defeated, 1 Up

Greenwich, Conn., June 16 (AP).—Billy Wolfe of Devitt Prep, Washington, D. C., lost in a tight quarter-final match in the thirty-fifth annual Eastern Interscholastic Golf Tourney today at the Greenwich Country Club.

He was defeated by Larry Hoffman of Kiskimentas, 1 up.

Hoffman was one hole ahead going into the eighteenth in the match play competition. Both were one the eighteenth green in two and sunk 3-foot putts to split this hole and end the match. The eighteenth is a 400-yard par 4 hole.

$25,000 Sussex Tops Delaware

Delaware Park, June 16.—The $25,000-added Sussex Handicap features the Saturday card here and, in its thirteenth running a banner field of nine topnotch routers will cotest the mile and a quarter race.

Carrying top weight in the battle will be Brandywine Stable's Cochise assigned 125 pounds.

Others, in the order of their weights, are King Ranch's Better Self, 120; and Flying Missel, 120; Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Loser Weeper, 119; Mrs. E. DuPont Weir's Royal Governor, 118; C. Ewing Tuttle's Double Brandy, 115; King Ranch's Curandero, 112; W. Arnold Hanger's Balan, 109 and Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Alfoxie, 106.

Included in the three-horse King Ranch's entry is 1949 winner of the Sussex, Flying Missel.

Recent form of the top weighted Cochise cannot be faulted, however, and the son of Boswell is likely to wind up favorite over his eight opponents. He has been no worse than third in nine starts this year and is credited with five victories, the most recent of which came in the Massachusetts Handicap.

On that occasion he beat such stell performers as My Request and Loser Weeper in track record time and brought his seasonal earnings to $39,345. Riding hi.i today will be the veteran Orvie Scurlock.

Loser Weeper is the biggest 1950 money-winner in the starting field, having earned $88,650 by victories in the Edward Burke (Havre de Grace), Valley Forge (Garden State), Dixie (Pimlico) and Suburban (Belmont) Handicaps. His last start was in the Massachusetts in which he finished four and a half lengths behind Cochise.

Royal Governor returns to action over his favorite track, and the hard-hitting gelding has already won a qualifying race here this week, beating allowance company handily in a mile and a sixteenth effort.

Scarborough Beats Nats, 7-1

boroug was, as we were saying, a gift. They got it in the third inning after Grasso opened with a double and Scarborough filled the bases with walks with one out. Then he struck out Noren, and Grasso finally scored when a Scarborough pitch was muffed by Masi. Tho after that, the Nats achieved nothing worth recording despite the ten walks Scarborough parceled out.

Fox Starts Big Third

Nelson Fox, a .194 hitter, started putting the skids under Nagy with a triple to right center that opened their big third inning.

Scarborough fanned, but Nagy walked Carrasquel and then it was that Philley pumped his three-run homer into the left field seats, wiping out the Nats' lead with one stroke.

But the Sox weren't through. Masi singled, and with two out, Robinson walked and Majeski singled. That made four runs across. Ross moved in and was no immediate success. He walked Scala, and then was a victim of a nubbed single to left, Fox's second hit of the inning, that was loaded with two more runs.

Scarborough himself drove in the seventh run of the inning with a single to left that was the Sox's sixth hit of the inning. Ie was entirely superfluous, but the Sox's 24,026 fans sort of liked it.

IN SHORT—any day now. Manager Harris will unveil Rookie Bobby Ross from Chattanoogt as a starting pitcher. But tomorrow he'll send Bob Kuzava against his former White Sox teammates. Ken Holcombe, recent winner over the Nats in Washington will pitch for the Sox . . . Late this afternoon, sweltering Chicago was blessed with a 30-degree temperature drop, from 92 to 62 at game time . . . In the 16 games since he joined the White Sox, Eddie Robinson is batting .339, 110 points better than his average with the Nats . . . The strong wind blowing took a photographer's hat off and across the infield in the second inning, revealing a bald head. "Hay, and it blew his hair off, too."

U.S. Wightman Team in Sweep

Wimbledon, England, June 16 (AP).—The United States wrapped up the Wightman Cup tennis trophy for another year today and needs only to tie one knot tomorrow before gaining possession of it for the fourteenth straight time.

The British court queens haven't won since 1930.

Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., needed only 30 minutes to blast Mrs. Walker-Smith off the courts for the first United States victory. The score was 6—0, 6—0.

Mrs. Margaret Osborne duPont of Wilmington, Del., defeated Mrs. Betty Hilton, 6—3, 6—4.

Doris Hart of Jacksonville, Fla., and Mrs. Pat Todd of La Jolla, Calif., whipped Jean Quertier and Mrs. Walker-Smith, 6—2, 6—3, to give the American team a clean sweep for the day.

Tennis Tourney Starts Today

The annual D.C. Recreation Department tennis tournament for adults begins 3 p. m. today at the Banneker Courts, Georgia ave. and Howard pl. nw. Players should be at the courts at 3 p. m. for the drawings.

Competition will be in the men's and women's singles, men's doubles and mixed doubles. Entry fee is $1.50 per person in singles and $1.25 per person in doubles.

Balls will be furnished by the Recreation Department. The tournament will continue through next Saturday.

Grace Lenczyk, Betty Rowland In College Finals

Columbus, Ohio, June 16 (AP).—Two coeds representing Florida universities today reached the finals of the sixth women's collegiate golf championship over the Ohio State University course.

Grace Lenczyk of Hartford, Conn., 22-year-old John B. Stetson student, went into the championship round for the fourth straight year with a 3 and 2 victory over Tommy Riley, of the University of Illinois.

Betty Rowland of Rollins College won the other semi-finals match, 6 and 4, over Marjorie McNeeley of Stetson. They meet tomorrow over 18 holes for the championship.

Joan Crampton's 69 Wins Golf Trophy

Miss Joan Crampton's 85-16—69 won the Robert P. Smith trophy in ladies' day golf yesterday at Congressional Country Club. Mrs. Walter A. Roma was second with 102-29—73 while Mrs. A. O. Hampton took third, carding a 105-31—74.

Mrs. David H. Henderson chalked up an 83 to win the low gross prize and Mrs. H. E. Weber putted the least times, 28.

British Envoys Told to Explain Stand on Pool

London, June 16 (AP).—The Labor Government cabled urgent instructions to its Ambassadors in France and the United States today to spread the word that Britain has not turned its back on European cooperation.

Prime Minister Clement Attlee is deeply alarmed at criticism from the United States over suggestions that his Labor Porty has done an about-face on projects to unite Europe.

There is a fear in the Government that the United States Congress may upset Britain's share of Marshall Plan appropriations as a result of congressional views on a Labor Party document published Tuesday.

That document rejected any idea of setting up a European federal government or what it called "supra-national authority" with power to dictate economic decisions to member countries.

One reason given was that anti-Socialist majorities in other countries might upset Socialist planning for full employment and economic recovery in this country.

But the party statement endorsed European cooperation through agreements among governments—a procedure which United States Ambassador Lewis Douglas recently said he thought was the most likely to produce results.

(Secretary Acheson drew a sharp distinction yesterday between the Labor Party's pamphlet and the British Government's policies.

(At his press conference he said Prime Minister Attlee had made it clear that the pamphlet was a party pronouncement rather than a statement of Government policy. Therefore, said Acheson, it would be inappropriate for him as Secretary of State to comment on it.

Anthony Eden, Conservative former foreign secretary, rapped the Labor statement in a Yorkshire speech.

Ice Chest, Tomb for Three Children . . .

The Washington Post

BROTHERS SUFFOCATE—Three brothers, Leon, 8; Wells, jr., 4, and Ronnie Michael, 3, children of Mr. and Mrs. Wells Proctor were found smothered to death in this abandoned ice chest in the backyard of their home on Fort Hunt rd., Tauxemont in Fairfax County. Their uncle, Matthew Morton, points to compartment where bodies were found fax police, asked them to go to the house. Then he set out for home.

About 3:30 the parents returned home. They enlisted the help of neighbors in scouring the area.

Father Remembers Icebox

About 4 p. m. the father suddenly remembered the icebox in the backyard. The Proctors recently abandoned it when they obtained an electric refrigerator.

Proctor remembered he had last noticed the ice box, about 4 feet high, 2 feet wide, resting on its back. The top door was open half way. The children often played with it.

The Penn Daw Rescue Squad took the youngsters to Alexandria Hospital.

Police noted that the door of the icebox opened only half way. The door might have been jolted shut by any slight movement of the icebox, police said.

The Proctors have one other child, Bonny Lou, 5 months old. Mrs. Proctor left the infants with friends in Alexandria when she went to work.

Tell us where you're going and we'll mail you The Post while you're on vacation. A postcard to the Circulation Department or a phone call to NAtional 4200 is all that's necessary.

Three-Power Talks On German Future To Open June 26

London, June 16 (AP).—British, American and French talks will open here June 26 to prepare for a September conference of Foreign Ministers on the future of Germany.

The French were reported to have suggested that the three powers make a special examination of the workings of the Ruhr Valley Authority, the international body which controls production and distribution of coal and steel from the industrial valley.

The discussion, however, would raise questions about the plan of French Foreign Minister Schuman to integrate European coal and steel. The British have refused to join discussions on the Schuman Plan, and may suggest that talk on the Ruhr Authority be abandoned until later.

The three-power discussions will get under way here six days after France, western Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg have started negotiations

2 Are Killed, 4 Injured In Crash On U. S. 1

Autos Collide In Elkridge, Md., Head-on; Pair Thrown From Car

Two Baltimore men were killed instantly and four Washington area residents were injured, three seriously, in a head-on collision of two cars yesterday on the Washington-Baltimore blvd. in Elkridge, Md.

Killed were John W. Walker, 25, driver of one car, and William Ervin, 24, a passenger in the same car.

Driver of the other car was Max B. Hornstone, 39-year-old salesman of 1513 Madison st., Hyattsville. He was admitted in serious condition to St. Agnes Hospital with possible internal injuries.

His wife, Mrs. Ruth Hornstone, 32, was admitted with face cuts. Seriously lacerated were two other passengers in their car, two nieces, Judith Hornstone, 11, and her sister, Paula, 4, of 4312 Halley terrace.

State Trooper Herbery W. Ey of Waterloo Barracks said Walker apparently lost control of his Baltimore-bound car as it sped down steep Buttermilk Hill. His car swerved into the third lane, striking Hornstone's Washington-bound car head-on. Both cars were demolished.

Five Washington residents were injured, one seriously, when their car slammed into a bridge abutment 14 miles north of Gaithersburg at 4:30 a. m. yesterday.

Sadie Smith, 35, 2540 14th st. nw., treated at Suburban and transferred to Gallinger Hospital with possible fracture of the right forearm and right leg.

Others Injured

Treated at Suburban Hospital were Leroy Hall, 25, the driver, 1136 21st st. nw., and Allen Carter, 39, 1019 22nd st. nw.

In an accident at 3 p. m. yesterday William D. Kranking, 65, 1705 2d st. ne., was injured when he walked into the side of a lumber truck. The driver, police said, was Stephen D. Bailey, 26, 2106 2d st. nw.

Illinois Ave. Crash

James P. Bull, jr., 28, and his wife, Dorothy, 28, of 4521 Georgia ave. nw., were injured at 6:45 a. m. when the car he was driving collided with a car driven by John J. Orlando, 33, of 1499 Saratoga ave. ne. at Illinois ave. and Taylor st. nw.

Bull was treated at Sibley Hospital, where he is employed as an engineer, for a bruised left leg and lacerations of the hand. Mrs. Bull was admitted in undetermined condition for head injuries and a possibly broken left arm. Orlando was not injured, police reported.

Both drivers were charged with colliding and are slated to appear in Police Court June 22.

Press Club Set For Wild West Barbecue

The National Press Club's "Roundup and Barbecue"—featuring wild and woolly entertainment sports events, oratory and just plain eatin'—gets under way at noon today at Fort Hunt, on Mount Vernon highway, six miles south of Alexandria.

Fred W. Perkins, outing committee chairman, looks for a turnout of about 2000 newsmen, Capitol dignitaries and guests.

Texas' John Snyder of Amarillo, billed as "king of the barbecue," and a crew of cowboy cooks arrived here several days ago to rustle up the beef feed.

A special car from New York on the Pennsylvania Railroad will bring probably the largest group of out-of-town guests. Another party is being organized in Philadelphia through the Pen & Pencil Club of that city, and other groups are coming in today from Pittsburgh and other cities.

The program will include:

A "forensic encounter" in which Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.) will "point with pride," while Representative Clarence J. Brown (R., Ohio) will "view with alarm."

A cowboy chorus, a personal appearance by Rex Allen, the Hollywood western star, an Indian war dance by 30 Government-employed braves and a variety of horse acts.

Special buses will leave from F st., between 14th and 15th sts, nw, from 12 to 12:15 p. m. They will return to town between 6 and 7 p. m.

Night of Thrills Attracts 21,000 to Griffith Stadium

The Washington Post

REIGNS OVER FESTIVAL—Martha Jane Murray of 3307 Kenilworth ave., Hyattsville, Md., a member of Bethel No. 1 of Jobs Daughters, is crowned queen of the "Night of Thrills" by Clark Griffith at Griffith Stadium. Queen Martha reigned over festivities sponsored by the Masonic Order for the benefit of the Masonic and Eastern Star Home

More than 21,000 spectators saw Clark Griffith crown pretty 18-year-old Martha Jane Murray and blond 17-year-old Edward A. Peterson, jr., queen and king of the 13th annual benefit for the Masonic and Eastern Star Home.

Festivities began in the afternoon with a baseball game between the Quantico Marines and Heurich Brewers. The Brewers won, 4-3.

Bill Herson of WRC was master of ceremonies. Cochairman were Police Inspector Clarence Lutz and Mrs. Louetta MacLeod.

The royal court included senior princess Jean Alma Wilson, junior princess Jacquelyn Elsie Williams, and ladies in waiting Joan Shirley Wilson, Ethel M. Vinson, Sylvia Viax, Nancy Lee Willoughby, Emma Mae Vaden, Charlotte Irene Martinsky and Mary Stefanakis.

After the coronation awards were made to the winners of the poster contest conducted in conjunction with the benefit, Betty McFerren, 17-year-old Montgomery Blair High student, won first prize of $10 and a silver cup. Runners-up were Bea Hamlin, Caroline Bemies, Jo Ann Ellerman, and Elaine Goodman.

A parade followed, led by a Metropolitan Police motorcycle detachment and Col. Edwin S. Bettelheim, Jr., Past Grand Master and pageant director.

The parade included the United States Marine Band, Quantico, U. S. Marine Drill team, U. S. Navy platoon, platoon of Waves, U. S. Air Force Band, U. S. Air Force drill team, U. S. Military District of Washington drill team of the Third Infantry, platoon of Wacs, and units from the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Metropolitan Boys Clubs, Almas Temple, American Legion, Boy Scouts, Hyattsville High, Elks Club and Tall Cedars.

Argument Ends In Assault, Arson Charges

A 37-year-old trucker was charged with arson and assault with intent to kill yesterday after the beating of a woman and a subsequent fire at her Bladensburg home Thursday night.

Collison

The trucker, Malcolm Collison, also lives at the house, 5600 Annapolis rd., Bladensburg. He was arrested in his truck by Prince Georges County police a short distance from the home about 1 a. m. yesterday.

Collison is accused of striking Mrs. Thelma Hackenberg, 45, on the head with a jack handle during an argument in the front yard. According to neighbors, he drove off in the truck immediately afterward, police said.

About two hours later, firemen from four Prince Georges County departments were summoned to quench a fire that broke out in a bedroom of the frame dwelling.

Corporal Roland Sweitzer and Private Emmett F. G. Gray, who investigated, said a partially filled can of gasoline was found on a charred bed and gasoline-soaked blankets in the kitchen.

Police credited the firemen with keeping down the damage. Confined principally to the bedroom, damage was estimated at from $3000 to $4000. The Bladensburg, Cottage City, Tuxedo and Landover Hills departments responded.

At Prince Georges General Hospital, Mrs. Hackenberg was in "good" condition with slight head injuries.

Members Scarce In Gold Key Raid, Court Is Told

In a September, 1948, raid on the Gold Key after hours club at 606 E st. nw., only 5 of the 74 persons present told police they were members, a detective testified in District Court yesterday.

Detective Clarence R. Winemiller testified that 52 persons said they were not members, and others said they were employes or entertainers.

The testimony was given in the second day of the civil suit for charter violation brought by the Government against the club and its president, Albert B. Glickfield.

The club is a Maryland corporation, unlike the other after hours spots the Government is trying to close. The case is being heard wtihout a jury by Judge T. Alan Goldsborough.

Makin to Speak

Ambassador Norman J. O. Makin of Australia will preach at 11 a. m. Sunday at Eldbrooke Methodist Church, River rd. and Wisconsin ave. nw.

Four Charged As Numbers Racketeers

Four alleged numbers men were arrested by police and arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence. The cases were continued until July 5.

Chester J. Mack, 34, was arrested by vice squad detectives in his basement apartment at 3149 Mount Pleasant st. nw. Raiders said they made plays with Mack and secured a warrant for his arrest.

"Why don't you arrest the big shots instead of me?" Mack irately asked the raiders.

"Who is the guy you are turning in?" responded a policeman.

"I'll take you over to where he lives," said Mack, police reported.

Mack led the vice squad men to a basement apartment at 3126 16th st. nw. There, Charles Gerald, 40, was arrested. Police said they found numbers slips on a table. Gerald and Mack, both of them janitors, were charged with operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips. Commissioner Lawrence released them under $1500 bond each.

Clarence W. Schall, 30, of 910 3th se. se., and George Earl Smith 38, of 1122 G st. se., were also arraigned on charges of operating a lottery, possession of numbers slips and setting up a gaming table.

Ohio State U. Alumni To Hear Eichelberger

Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger (U.S.A., ret.) will address a dinner meeting of the Ohio State University Alumni Club of Washington today at 6 p. m. at the Kennedy-Warren.

General Eichelberger will discuss his experiences as wartime commanding officer of the Eighth Army; which fought on every occupied island of the Philippine archipelago in World War II. Reservations for the dinner may be made through Don Swartz at Union 1941.

Senate Group Favors Boost In Idle Pay

Businessmen's Plea For Better Check On Abuses Ignored In Bill Revision

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

A Senate District subcommittee has approved the bill to hike unemployment compensation benefits in the District.

The benefits now are limited to a maximum of $20 for 20 weeks. The bill would boost the maximum to $33 for 26 weeks. Numerous other changes in the existing law are also provided in the bill drafted by the District Unemployment Compensation Commission and introduced by District Chairman Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.).

Subcommittee approval of the measure was announced by Senator Edward L. Leahy (D., R. I.). He is chairman of the special 3-member group appointed by Neely to review the compensation bill after the full Senate District committee held hearings on it.

Suggestion Not Followed

The measure was indorsed by labor groups and many of its provisions were protested by business groups. The subcommittee made technical changes in the bill, but no major alterations along the line proposed by testimony of business groups. The business men urged stronger safeguards in the act to bar abuses.

The amended bill is one of a number which have been programmed for action by the Senate District Committee Tuesday.

Leahy announced his group had also approved two other bills supported by labor groups and opposed by business.

Major Changes Listed

One applies the District minimum wage law to men. The other sets standards for methods of paying wages in private industry here. Leahy's subcommittee approved several changes designed to overcome objections to the two bills.

Committee Counsel Gerhard P. van Arkel said the major changes in the wage payment bill are:

1. A 5-day instead of a 3-day period would be provided between the end of pay periods and the pay day.

2. Administration would be under the Minimum Wage Board. The first bill left it to the Commissioners to pick the administering agency.

3. District and Federal Government positions would be exempt from the proposed law.

4. A section making prime contractors responsible for wage payments of defaulting subcontractors was removed from the bill.

5. Firms with fewer than eight employes would be exempted from requirements for posting notice of the wage payment system or from notifying employes of it in writing.

6. Another new section allows for agreements with unions for a system of wage payments different than the set-up under the proposed law.

Van Arkel said the main revision of the minimum wage bill calls for making the records required under the proposed law identical with those required by the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Rockville, Chillum Gas Pipe Planned

The Prince Georges Gas Corp., Chillum, Md., asked the Federal Power Commission yesterday for authority to build a 20-mile pipeline between Chillum and Rockville, Md.

The line, designed to carry additional natural gas to the Washington metropolitan area, would cost an estimated $1,360,000.

The company, a subsidiary of Washington Gas Light Co., said the 22-inch line would transport gas to its Chillum compressor station for delivery to the Washington distribution system.

The line would connect at Rockville with facilities of Atlantic Seaboard Corp., which supplies fuel to Washington Gas Light Co.

Gas also would be delivered along the proposed route to Washington Gas Light Co. of Maryland, Inc., another Washington Gas Light subsidiary.

Post's 'Ideal Father' Winner Goes Into a Busy Weekend

Lieut. Comdr. Harold R. Willis, winner of The Washington Post's Ideal Father of the Area contest, has a schedule with every minute taken.

At Dupont Park this afternoon, he heads the activities committee for Cub Scout Pack 63's "camporee."

Den 9, of which Mr. and Mrs. Ideal Father are "Den Dad" and "Den Mom" hope to be in on the prizes offered for broad jumping, racing, soft ball, and other contests.

In the heel-to-toe race, with sizes 7 shoe trying to outdistance sizes 12½, dad must walk backward while junior sees what he's doing. Only fair!

Father's Day, itself, promises to be less active, but just as much fun. Hazel Markel interviews the 40-year-old father on her 1:15 program over WTOP.

In a corner of the Statler dining room the Ideal Father, Mrs. Willis, Harold, jr. 8, and Carol Lee, 3, will enjoy pigeon wings turtle soup, or whatever their hearts desire. Then they will go to Loew's Capitol, where they'll see "The Asphalt Jungle," with Sterling Hayden. During the stage show, the best dad will be introduced to the audience.

Phone Workers Show Hobbies—From Cats (Live) to Cats (Hep)

The Washington Post

PISTOL PACKIN'—T. O. O'Donnoghue, chief switchman in the Hyattsville, Md., C and P office, displays his collection of 135 ancient weapons at the hobby show sponsored by Chapter 15, Telephone Pioneers of America, at their annual meeting at the Shoreham Hotel. He and Mrs. O'Donnoghue of 4510 Hewitt ave., Silver Spring, Md., handle 1730 Queen Anne dueling pistols

SWEET MUSIC—Western Electric employes Curtis Lee Yates and D. L. Teague exhibited 81 different recordings of Star Dust. Versions made here and abroad are in the collection. Mrs. John W. Stevens of 4427 Harrison st. nw., member of the Columbia Light Opera Company, was attracted to the recordings

Judging by the cats, an Australian recording of "Stardust", an Eli Whitney revolver, scale model streetcars, and "internal plastic carving," it was obvious yesterday that Washington's telephone company workers are a talented (or acquisitive) lot.

Such hobby items, and nearly fifty others, were displayed yesterday at the Shoreham Hotel by employes of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. who made or collected them.

From cats to ceramics, the display was sponsored by Chapter 15 of the Telephone Pioneers of America—whose members all have completed at least 21 years of telephone service.

Occasion was the 28th annual meeting of the chapter. A business meeting, dinner, and dance followed the hobby show.

In booth 44, for example, Western Electric employes Curtis Yates and Larry Teague showed off the former's 81 different recordings of the classic, "Stardust." Versions made in England, Canada, Australia, Holland, and France were there.

Down the way, Mrs. Ethel B. Tilson showed her lifetime collection of exquisite Canton chinaware, each of which identifies its maker by odd scratches or dots on the back.

T. O. O'Donnoghue, chief switchman in the Hyattsville office, displayed the revolver made by Eli Whitney, better known for his cotton gin.

Record Shows Richitt Had 8 Postwar Cars

Capt. Anthony Richitt, commanding officer of the Eighth Police Precinct, recently accused of misbehavior in the Police Department, purchased 8 autos during the postwar car shortage, records of the Department of Vehicles and Traffic showed yesterday.

The cars were bought between April 3, 1946, and August 12, 1948. The records show he sold 4 of them during that time and is still driving the last one purchased.

Richitt had no comment on the transactions. He did confirm a report, however, that he had listed the car transactions on his income tax returns and that he had told former Assistant Corporation Counsel Daniel B. Maher about them not so long ago.

Maher, who left the District Government Thursday to resume private practice of law, recently compiled a report for the District Commissioners in which he accused Richitt of insubordination, conduct unbecoming an officer, neglect of duty, and being absent without leave. The report was forwarded to Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett, who will decide, on the advice of his inspectors, if any action will be taken against Richitt.

40 & 8 Initiation

A class of 50 candidates will be initiated into Grande Voiture 174, District of Columbia Forty and Eight at the annual Wreck of the American Legion fun and organization at 8 tonight in the Silver Spring Armory. The affair will be preceded by dinner at 6 p. m.

Too Expensive

West Chills Vandalism Pay Plan

Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West told school officials it wouldn't be worth the trouble to try to force parents to pay for broken school windows.

The view was contained in an opinion on legislation sought by School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning to make a parent responsible for the window broken by his child. Annually the District spends $19,000 replacing broken school windows. About 80 percent of the breakage is out-right vandalism, school officials say.

West declared that a law suit may be necessary to collect from a parent. This would require the preparing and filing of documents and trial before a court. To satisfy a judgment it might be necessary to seize property. All of this would be more expensive to the Government than replacing the glass, he said.

Man Held in $3000 Bond on Sex Charge

Robert H. Miller, 45, 417 6th st. nw., was held under $3000 bond for action of the grand jury yesterday, charged with a sex offense involving a 14-year-old girl.

Judge Armond W. Scott set the bond in Municipal Court after Miller pleaded not guilty at a private hearing in the court library.

30-Police Dragnet Brings in Theft Suspect

Prowl Cars, Cycles, Foot Patrolmen Join in Search Of 1½ Hours

William (Country) Carpenter, 47, once a notorious underworld character, surrendered on his knees. He was charged with a $1000 liquor store theft.

Carpenter

Carpenter, unscathed, was arraigned on charges of housebreaking and grand larceny involving the Dal-Green Liquor Store, 2701 12th st ne. He was held under $10,000 bond and the case was continued by United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence until July 5.

At 4 a. m. police received a telephone call that someone was breaking into the store. Phoner was Howard Dean, 1208 Evarts st. ne., who lives near the store.

First on the scene were Pvts. W. E. Christensen and J. L. Costello in Scout car No. 121.

Down the street a man pivoted, ducked into an alley between houses in the 1200 block of Evarts st. ne.

Pvt. Costello radioed for help to dragnet the area.

"Don't shoot . . . that's all," shouted Carpenter, cringing on his knees, his hands high up.

He had not been hit.

Police took him back to the liquor store. Out front in a parked car they found the store's cash register, valued at $400, loaded with $900 in cash. Also in the car was $91 worth of whisky.

Police said Carpenter had a record of 22 arrests dating back to the early '20s when he was known to police as a rum-runner. He was sentenced to two years in jail for perjury in 1938.

Camouflaged Car Sale Gets Man Jail Term

Robert L. Richards, 29, will have the next 20 months and perhaps even the next five years to think up a new wrinkle in the stolen auto line.

Richards, who gave the address of 5062 Sherrier pl. nw. on court records, got the 20-month-to-5-year prison term from Judge James R. Kirkland in District Court yesterday for grand larceny of an automobile last February 8.

According to the charges, Richards stole a 1946 Chrysler, dressed it up with an engine and parts of a later design and "sold" it for $1175 to a used car dealer as a 1948 model.

In another case Aurello P. Martinez, 29, of 1826 18th st. nw., received 6 to 18 months for taking indecent liberties with a 14-year-old girl.

Oliver Henson, Jr., 33, of 426 1st st. sw., received three to 10 years for robbing several stores here.

Charles P. Prysock, 36, 2211 M st. nw., who was found guilty of assault with intent to carnally know a six-year-old girl last March, received a 4-to-12-year term.

'India the First' Stars

Tea Fetes Mrs. Edwards, But Mother Steals Show

By Norma Lanum

Mrs. India Edwards, new vice chairman of the National Democratic Committee, was the honor guest at a tea yesterday given by the Women's National Democratic Committee.

But it was her mother, "India the First," who stole the show.

Sweet Mrs. India Gillespie, who is spending the summer at Harwood Farm, Md., with her celebrated daughter, made quite a hit at the party. She told guests about Thursday's canning: four quarts of asparagus and four quarts of strawberries.

And she also told about driving a bright red jeep over the Pennsylvania Turnpike to Detroit last year. "Not many ladies my age would do that, you know," beamed Mrs. Gillespie, without, of course, mentioning her age.

Mrs. Edwards didn't want to mention her age yesterday, either. It was her birthday and the clubwomen gave her an orchid corsage in celebration of the occasion.

Too Old for Birthdays

"But I wish they didn't have to remember it," she said jokingly. "I'm too old to have any more birthdays."

Before the tea got underway 44 new members of the Democratic National Speakers Bureau for 1950 were given awards for their completion of the Fair Deal Facts Seminar conducted at the clubhouse.

The ladies, who will accept speaking and speech writing assignments from now until the last mid-term Congressional election is over, include several Cabinet and Congressional wives: Mrs. Oscar Chapman, wife of the Interior Secretary; Mrs. Charles Brannan, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture; Mrs. Frank Pace jr., wife of the Secretary of the Army, and others.

Democratic Chairman William M. Boyle, jr., presented certificates to the women and tabbed them "active and informed soldiers of the Democratic Committee."

Then Mr. Boyle went back to his office and turned the party over to the women as a large non-partisan gathering began to stream into the old club house on New Hampshire ave. to pay tribute to Mrs. Edwards—known as a girl's best friend in the Democratic Committee.

Mrs. Eric Johnston, who came as Mrs. Charles Brannan's guest, was one of the best known Republicans at the tea. And there were also several leaders of outstanding women's clubs of the city.

Among them, Miss Marguerite Griffin, president of the Women's City Club; Miss Etta Mai Russell, president of the Council of Church Women; Mrs. Nathan Simkowitz, of B'nai B'rith women.

Other guests included Mrs. Jesse Donaldson, wife of the Postmaster General; United States Treasurer Mrs. Georgia Neese Clark, Mrs. Charles Murphy, wife of the Presidential counsel; Director of the Mint, Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross and lots more.

FEW girl graduates have a chance to wear such a glamorous evening gown as this when they step up to receive their sheepskin. But Lela Cole is different. Last night, when she graduated from Phyllis Bell's School of Fashion Modeling, part of the ceremonies were a style show. The event took place in the Crystal Room of the Willard Hotel, with 80 new graduates participating. Miss Cole's dress, of turquoise net and lace, is from Selma's on Connecticut ave.

It's Music, Music, Music For Younger Set as Buds' Dances Dominate Scene

By Elizabeth Maguire

WASHINGTON'S little season is in full bloom, with buds coming out thick and fast. It was music, music, music yesterday for the young set from teatime to early morning. Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss gave a dance at Merrywood, their home in McLean, for the latter's daughter, Miss Lee Bouvier, and a double debut was made by Miss Jane McAtee and Miss Caro Butler at a tea dance at the Army Navy Country Club.

Dancing on Lawn At Merrywood

MERRYWOOD was filled with yellow and white daisies for Miss Bouvier's debut. A dance floor and marquee were set up on the lawn, with music supplied by Meyer Davis' Orchestra.

Supper was served from a buffet in the dining room and guests were seated at small tables on the terrace. Lights were strung through the garden and around the blue-lined swimming pool.

The pretty blonde debutante wore a white-pleated frock of nylon tulle and carried an old-fashioned bouquet. Her mother was gowned in yellow chiffon with a spray of brown orchids pinned at the shoulder.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Franklin d'Olier of Wynnewood, Pa., brother-in-law and sister of Mrs. Auchincloss. Also on hand were several school friends of the debutante who are visiting Merrywood.

Before the dance, Mrs. Dwight Davis gave a dinner at the 1925 F Street Club for Miss Bouvier and Miss Sheila Morton Smith, her granddaughter, who was presented at a garden party on June 7.

Another dinner was given by Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Hagner for their daughter, Miss Allison Hagner, at Deepwater, in McLean. A dinner was also given by Col. and Mrs. David S. Barry for their daughter, Miss Barbara Barry.

Gloges

MISS LEE BOUVIER, who was presented at a dance given last evening by her mother, Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, and Mr. Auchincloss at Merrywood, their home in McLean, Va. Dancing was outdoors under a marquee, and midnight supper was served on the terrace. A dinner before the dance was given by Mrs. Dwight Davis at the 1925 F Street Club

Two Debutantes Presented Jointly

CHARMING indeed was the picture made by Miss McAtee and Miss Butler who were presented together by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Camden Riley McAtee and Comdr. and Mrs. William Joseph Butler, USN. Their debut was a tea-dance, at the Army-Navy Country Club.

Miss Butler's gown was of white mousseline de soie with very bouffant skirt and big bows lined with touches of pink. Miss McAtee wore a gown of white nylon net over gleaming taffeta with bouffant skirt. Her necklace and earrings were heirlooms which belonged to her maternal great-grandmother. Both girls carried old-fashioned bouquets.

White flowers and palms decorated the ballroom, and music was by Sidney and his orchestra.

Assistants of the two debutantes were the Misses Peatce Butler, Betty Browder, Cynthia Woll, Georgia McMahon, Betsy MacCubbin, Molly Holden, Suzanne Wise, Patricia Ganey, Joan Wolters, Sue Ann Rouse, and Mary Florence Kern.

MISS CARO BUTLER, who made her bow with Miss McAtee at a tea dance yesterday at the Army Navy Country Club. She is the daughter of Comdr. and Mrs. William Joseph Butler, USN

To Become Counselor At Summer Camp

JANE McATEE leaves the end of June for the Adirondacks, where she will spend the summer as counselor at Camp Jeanne d'Arc. She attends Georgetown Visitation Convent. Her sister debutante, Caro Butler, was graduated last June from Stone Ridge County Day School of the Sacred Heart and has just completed her first year at Mt. Vernon Junior College. She will visit this summer at Rehoboth Beach, Del.

Party Honors Burma Finance Secretary

U HLA MAUNG, Finance Secretary of Burma, was honor guest at a cocktail party given yesterday by the Burmese Charge d'Affaires, U Tin Maung, and Mrs. Maung at their residence on Bradley Blvd. The Secretary has been in this country since early June, attending meetings of the Technical Affairs Program at the United Nations.

Cocktail guests included M. O. A. Baig, Minister of Pakistan; Dr. Suwanto, cultural attache of Indonesia; the Charge d'Affaires of Israel, Moshe Keren, and Mrs. Keren; British Counselor, H. A. Graves, and Mrs. Graves; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sparks of the State Department, and many others.

Sweden's national holiday yesterday went by without celebration at the embassy, as Madame Boheman, wife of the Ambassador, is in Sweden, and the Ambassador left yesterday to join her.

They will return in September.

Wolverines to Bat For Supremacy at Michigan Picnic

By Nicha Souré

MAKE way for the battle of the baseball diamond!

It won't be Griffith Stadium, but at the Michigan State Society annual picnic on Sunday, June 25. Clashing for supremacy will be the Upper Peninsula Bears, sponsored by Representative John Bennett, and Senator Homer Ferguson's Lower Peninsula Tigers.

Umpiring will be Representative Charles Potter, whose district lies half in the upper and half in the lower peninsula, thus assuring each team of strictly unbiased judgment.

THE Wolverines will meet for their picnic at Rock Creek Park at Grove 24, 16th and Kennedy sts. nw. at 4 p. m. Represhments will be provided by the food committee or members may bring their own picnic baskets.

There'll be contests, games and sports for young and old. Harry McDonald, Securities and Exchange Commissioner, who is well known in Michigan circles for his vocal talent, will wind up the activities with group singing.

Further information about the picnic or the society may be obtained from the Michigan congressional offices, or from the president of the groupl Gordon Gillis, at Wisconsin 8338.

THE Oregon State Society will hold a picnic at the Palisades on the Potomac River on Sunday, from 2 until 8 p. m.

Coffee, lemonade and ice cream will be served by the food committee of which Pherne Miller is chairman. The afternoon program will include outdoor sports.

On the picnic planning committee are Grant Conway, Pherne Miller, Kenneth Lee, Thelma Hulsey, Maj. Bill Marsh and Lola Wyckoff.

Although reservations to the picnic are not necessary, the food committee requests that members advise them so an approximate number of guests can be estimated. Reservations may be made through Lola Wyckoff, 2700 Q st. nw., Hobart 8696.

TEXAS STATE SOCIETY will gather for a cocktail dance next Friday at the Royal Palm Room of the Cairo Hotel. Besides dancing, tables will be set up for canasta and bridge. This is the first in a series of events planned by the Texans for their members during the summer. These events will be free to those holding membership cards.

THE Massachusetts State Society will hold a picnic at Rock Creek Park tomorrow at 1 p. m. Under the chairmanship of Mrs. Estell McQuade, a program of softball, volley ball and pitching horseshoes has been arranged.

COL. M. A. HOHERZ of Arlington was elected president of the South Dakota Society at the recent annual luncheon of the group.

Serving with Colonel Hoherz will be Lambert Miller, first vice president; Lawrence Molumby, second vice president; Carl R. Bauman, third vice president; Iva Van Horn, secretary, and William M. North, jr., treasurer.

Californians to Dance At Centennial Ball

TONIGHT'S the night the Californians in Washington will celebrate their State's 100th birthday.

The California Centennial Ball will be held in the Presidential Room of the Statler Hotel. Miss Nancy Whittemore Edwards, who was California's Cherry Blossom Princess, will reign as queen.

Serving as the queen's attendants will be Miss Sheila Hersey, niece of Mrs. E. A. Evans; Miss Beverly Butcher, daughter of Mrs. Ruth Barton Butcher; Miss Jan King, granddaughter of Lady Willmott Lewis; Miss Janet Francis, daughter of Mrs. Warren Francis; Miss Louise Day, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. D. L. Day; Miss Jane McKee, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Logan McKee; Miss Norma Frost, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Frost, and Miss Margo Strong, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Phillip G. Strong.

Spencers Planning Home in Capital

Dr. and Mrs. Charles Herbert Spencer, both associated with George Washington University Hospital, will reside in this city following their wedding trip in Canada.

They were married June 3 in Mattoon, Ill. The bride, a nurse with the hospital, is the former Miss Charleen Keller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Keller of Mattoon.

Dr. Spencer is doing research in anesthesiology at the hospital. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Spencer of Pittsburgh.

Salvador Envoy Leaves for New York

The Ambassador of El Salvador and Senora de Castro went to New York yesterday to attend a dinner given in their honor by the permanent representative of China to UN, Tingsu F. Tsiang. A decoration, Grand Cordon Brilliant Star, was presented to the Ambassador by Mr. Tsiang in appreciation of the help the government of El Salvador has given to the case of National China at the UN.

Benefit Dance Recital Will Be Held June 22

Taft Junior High School P.-T.A. sponsors the Kitty Hottel School of Dance in presentation of "Kittenantics" at the school auditorium, 18th and Perry sts. n.e., Thursday, June 22 at 8:30 p.m. Proceeds from this program will be used to cover the floor of the school's new gym with non-skid wax.

Nothing's Impossible!

Some people seem to thrive on adversity and Roger Arnett is one of them. With the philosophy that nothing's impossible, this "hopeless" cripple turned a $300 investment into a $6,500 a year business. For his story, read "He won the big race!" this Sunday in Parade.

Capital Transit Ordered to Put Bus Stop Back

The District yesterday ordered Capital Transit Co. to move its eastbound bus stop in the 1400 block of I st., nw., back to its original location near a parking lot entrance at the 14th st. end of the block.

Last month after parking-lot operator Charles B. McDonald complained buses were hurting his business by blocking the lot entrance, District Court indicated it would order CTC to leave the entrance clear.

The District Public Utilities Commission then ordered the stop moved 150 feet west temporarily while it studied the situation. But this brought complaints that the new stop interfered with trucks making deliveries to shops at the new location.

Yesterday a joint board, consisting of the PUC and the District Commissioners, ordered the stop moved Monday at 10 a. m. for these reasons:

(1) The 14th and I sts. intersection is a busy transfer point between bus and streetcar and needs a bus close by. To satisfy all businessmen the stop would have to be moved west almost to 15th st.

(2) Some rush-hour congestion is bound to occur at the parking lot entrance whether from stopped buses or vehicles waiting for the traffic light at 14th st.

Community Center Reictal

More than 100 children, from 3 to 14, will participate in the annual recital of the Jewish Community Center's Junior Arts Department Sunday at 8 p. m. in Cafritz Auditorium. The program will include a special tribute to Washington's Sesquepentennial celebration and to Father's Day.

Scientists Plan Special Study On Heart Ills

Special studies of animal, plant and soil products to find new remedies for heart and blood vessel disorders are to begin soon at the National Heart Institute, in Bethesda, Md.

The new undertaking was disclosed yesterday with announcement of the establishment of a Section on Chemistry by the NHI.

He is a member of the American Chemical Society, the Swiss Chemical Society, Sigma Xi, Tau Beta Pi, Alpha Chi Sigma and Phi Lambda Upsilon.

Scientists of the new section first will try to isolate from relatively large quantities of test materials those substances which seem to show biological importance.

Efforts will then be made to extract, purify and identify the active components, and later to test their effects on animals before their clinical tests on humans.

Group Ready To Purchase Greenbelt, Md.

The Greenbelt Veterans Housing Corp. has formally thrown its hat in the ring as a potential purchaser of the model city of Greenbelt.

The corporation submitted its qualifications for purchase of the city to the Public Housing Administration Thursday. It is the only group to have done so since the Government put Greenbelt on the block June 7 at a price of $8,522,350.

If other cooperatives submit their qualifications before the August 7 deadline, sealed bids will be asked and the highest bidder will get the city. Cooperatives must have at least 800 members, half of whom are veterans. The Greenbelt Veterans' Housing Corporation has 1072 members.

Thieves in Action On Video and Off

Baltimore, June 16 (AP).—Three persons watched a detective show on television last night at the Irving Stadd home.

They now could use the services of a detective.

Leonard Stadd, a son, said while they were watching the televised detective stalk lawbreakers one got into the home and stole $50 in cash and a $30 check.

Emotional Weaning Stressed

Vocation of Marriage Calls For Knowledge and Skill

This is the last of a series of articles condensed from the recent book, "Before You Marry," published by Association Press. The author is Professor of Social Science and Religion at George Williams College, Chicago.

By Sylvanus Duvall

CHAPTER SIX

Are you willing to get the knowledge and skill which success in marriage requires?

Marriage is a vocation which calls for careful training. Whether or not you get this training will depend in part upon your emotional attitude.

When a couple first marry they often lack important skills, not only in buying and cooking, but in social graces, sexual adjustments and tending the furnace. These lacks may prove distressing.

They need not be serious, provided you are willing to do what is necessary to overcome them. This willingness is largely a matter of "acting your age."

Emotional infants, when confronted with a problem, often lie down and scream. When adults are frustrated they study how to overcome the obstacle.

Are you both emotionally weaned from your parents?

Until a person has become mature enough to be weaned from his or her parents so completely as to need no substitute, he is not ready for marriage.

Becoming emotionally weaned from our parents does not mean, of course, that we reject their influence, or that we cease to love them.

On the contrary, only as we become free from them and persons in our own right, can we be free to love them most fully and deeply. It means primarily that we come to think our own thoughts and feel our own feelings.

It is not easy. Here are a few suggestions which may help:

Are you usually well poised? Under sufficient pressure, almost anyone will become irritable. But if slight irritations bother you too much, there is a danger signal. So is constant pouting.

The ability to keep from getting unduly excited, even in serious situations, is a good sign.

Are you "nervous?" Have you ever had a "nervous breakdown?"

If you have, this does not necessarily mean you are not fit for marriage. People can recover from this, as from any ailment. But if the tendency to nervous breakdown remains, watch out.

A history of several nervous breakdowns is a danger signal which ought to be examined by a competent consultant.

Do you drink excessively? Do you find that at times you are not able to control your drinking?

Are you a chain smoker? This is a less serious form of the same problem. If chronic, it usually indicates a difficulty which should be looked into.

Do you strongly desire to dominate others? Does it annoy you unduly to recognize that you are wrong sometimes; do you always have to be right?

Are you constantly changing your job, your school, or your friends?

Can you make up your own mind?

As we have repeatedly pointed out, marriage and parenthood are difficult jobs. They require a high degree of intelligence and understanding for success. If you depend primarily upon some outside "authority," you will not be able to make the kind of intelligent judgments which are essential if you are to run your household and bring up your children wisely.

TV Sops Up Oldies:

Film, Video Operator Caught in Dilemma

By Howard C. Heyn

CHAPLIN

The feature films you see at home have lost their boxoffice appeal. They're strictly from the archives. Otherwise TV wouldn't get 'em. And yet these venerable flickers are earning higher fees for third and fourth TV showings than they did for first video runs.

People will still look at them—if they don't have to buy tickets.

Such is the paradox that has developed from the refusal of major studios to provide television with reasonably recent pictures. But can you blame the movie producers? Film companies have fortunes invested in cinema houses. Are they going to dump these theaters in favor of the living room circuit? Not any sooner than they have to, anyway.

Even old films are in short supply. Heaviest user of pictures among the seven local TV stations is KECA, the ABC network outlet. George Boggs, ABC director of film programs, says he uses 50,000 feet of film a week—features, shorts, westerns, comedies, commercials.

None Produces Films

KECA-TV bills 16¼ hours of pictures every week. KNBH (NBC) shows films only 3½ hours a week, and KTTV (Times-CBS) 2 hours. Figures for other stations are KTLA 12¾ hours, KLAC-TV 9 hours, KTSL 7 hours of westerns and 2½ hours of features, KFI-TV 2½ hours.

None of the networks makes its own feature films for television. They may, later. A couple have acquired old movie studios. Independent TV movie producers can't begin to meet the demand, at prices today's sponsors will pay.

That's why vintage pictures (with a few slightly newer British films) are populating the parlor with such resurrected luminaries as Janet Gaynor, Charles Farrell, Dolores Costello, Mary Astor, Tim McCoy, Hopalong Cassidy (sometimes known as Bill Boyd) and Hoot Gibson.

Boggs estimates that TV stations in Los Angeles alone will spend one million dollars—maybe $1,500,000—for such ancient material this year.

Rereleasing a Factor

OTHER sources hint that film fare ultimately will cost more than live TV shows. Movies are that popular. And already certain cinema producers are asking: "Why should we rent even the old pictures to television when we can rerelease them in theaters?" They are rereleasing some of them.

Almost every feature available to TV, regardless of age, has been shown once, video-wise. Most of them have made the rounds three and four times. Short subjects lease for $15 to $75 per showing, westerns for $30 to $250 and features for $150 to $1000. The Hopalong films are bringing $1000 per showing on the THIRD time around.

What coaxial cables will do to this situation is only a pointless guess, since transcontinental TV networks are still a fluttery gleam in the cathode eye.

Old comedies are running close to westerns in popularity. Charlie Chase, Laurel and Hardy and Billy Gilbert are building new audiences among the generation which followed their heyday.

Charlie Chaplin is a recent addition to the roster. A fan who met Chaplin at a play told the comedian: "I sure do enjoy seeing you again, on television." To which Chaplin replied:

"I enjoy seeing myself."

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

The Mail Goes Through, But Not Through Red Lights

The other day I answered a reader's question about the right-of-way rules governing police vehicles and ambulances. As an afterthought, I added that a fire engine (making a run) would take precedence over both.

Three readers complain that I stopped short. Bill Houston of 4015 71st ave., Landover Hills, Md.; C. A. M. of Charlottesville, Va., and Frank R. McGregor of 2700 Wisconsin ave. put it this way:

"You should have added that a U. S. mail truck would have the right-of-way over all the emergency vehicles mentioned."

Dimly, I recalled that I had investigated this notion several years ago. But I couldn't remember how the story ended, so I made another dozen phone calls. And got a surprise.

Police, traffic and Post Office officials were almost unanimous in saying: "Sure a mail truck has the right of way. It's against the law to interfere with the U. S. mail. But I don't know the exact law that would cover the situation."

But William B. Allen, jr., special assistant to the Postmaster General, enters a vigorous denial.

"That story has persisted for scores of years," he says, "and it will probably continue to circulate long after you and I are gone. But it is completely without foundation. Post Office vehicles have no special rights or privileges under law. Local officials usually accord us whatever courtesies are required in the performance of our duties, just as special loading zones are provided for privately owned commercial vehicles. But the law does not set us apart."

C. J. Bowman, superintendent of vehicles for the Post Office, adds this thought: "Our drivers are instructed to obey all traffic regulations and signals and to drive carefully. 'Safety First' is our motto."

As I was saying: A fire engine making an emergency run would have top priority.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Two 6-week-old part-Angora kittens." (District 8739.)

"Two male guinea pigs, accustomed to children." (Wisconsin 5469.)

"Five-year-old black male cocker spaniel wants home with large yard." (Union 1341.)

VICTORY

All's well that ends well. My friend who knows the fellow who mows the lawn for Senator Smathers pulled a few strings, and now I have my invitation to the free chicken dinner being held by the Florida State Society. The only thing that worries me now is that I understand the Ohio State Society is bringing treason charges against me.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I'm a bit late with this letter. Three years late, to be exact.

Remember when you had Herblock on your radio program three years ago? My letter was awarded one of the prizes in your contest, and I was supposed to get an original drawing, autographed by Herb.

But I left town before the awards were made and now that I'm back I wonder whether I can still claim my prize? His "I'm Your Replacement" cartoon the other day was simply magnificent and that's the one I'd like to have.

Bess Duff
2229 Bancroft pl. nw.

Dear Bess:

You have precipitated a crisis.

For years, I tried to convince Herb that he shouldn't give away his originals, but the easy-going sap didn't pay any attention.

Then the Corcoran Art Gallery put on its Herblock show, and Herb had to go out and borrow back his originals from a hundred different people.

That convinced him, and he adopted a hard-and-fast rule against giving away originals. It was a big help to him in preparing for other exhibitions that followed, including the recent one in New York.

But your letter puckered his brow. "I really owe her a drawing, don't I"? he reasoned. (That's what comes of having principles.)

So his answer is: "Tell Bess to drop in at my office in The Washington Post and pick up the drawing. But don't tell anybody, or I'll have a lot of explaining to do."

It's an excellent solution to the problem, Bess, and if you don't tell anybody, I won't, either.

Bill

WRITE-WINGER

News reports reveal that the bankrupt Lustron Corp. paid Senator McCarthy $10,000 for writing an article about housing.

Ordinarily, I would not be too keen about outsiders who muscle into the writing business, as this makes less work for professional writers—who are as deserving a group of indigents as you'll find anywhere.

But in the Senator's case, I'm rather glad to have him join our ranks. The gentleman from Wisconsin is certainly no price cutter, and the size of his fee may tend to raise going wage levels for the rest of us.

Probe of 'Hushed' Cases Sought

By Drew Pearson

Several Democratic Senators are giving unadvertised support to the Republican proposal for a separate committee to investigate the Justice Department and the Amerasia case.

PEARSON

The Democrats don't want their strategy known to the Republicans, but what they are planning to do is broaden the Justice Department probe to include other wartime cases which were hushed up, particularly the mysterious shushing of the Chicago Tribune prosecution for giving aid and comfort to the Japanese following the Battle of Midway.

So far the Justice Department has never given an explanation as to why a grand jury, called to indict the Chicago Tribune for a serious breach of wartime secrecy, suddenly was called off.

The Democrats also have in mind probing another mysterious case involving the Chicago Tribune when it published on December 5, 1941—two days before Pearl Harbor—a sensational story about American mobilization showing that the United States planned to build up an army of 10 million men. The story was documented by confidential memos exchanged between the President and the Secretaries of War and Navy, making it obvious that the Tribune had got hold of one of the most important military secrets in the Nation.

The New York Daily News and the Washington Times-Herald, now owned by the Tribune, published identical stories, and some members of the Administration urged prosecution at that time.

The matter was dropped, however, and Democratic Senators now believe that it would be a good idea for the public to know why.

They feel that these two cases against the Chicago Tribune are identical with the Amerasia case in which State Department secrets also were disclosed.

Japan's Secret Code

The Battle of Midway disclosure by the Chicago Tribune was considered even more damaging to the national security. At that time Stanley Johnston wrote a story for the Tribune that the United States Navy knew the complete strength of the Japanese fleet in advance, and the fact that it was headed for Midway Island. The Tribune even published the exact number of Jap ships and gave their names.

Obviously the Navy's possession of this advance information was due to superior intelligence work. In fact, it became known after the war that the Navy's amazing knowledge was because we were breaking Japan's secret code.

This permitted the Navy to bring ships and planes from all over the Pacific two weeks in advance of the battle and concentrate them at Midway. The West Coast of the U.S.A. was left almost unguarded.

Had the Japs become aware of what was happening and shifted their tactics, the cities of Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, and so forth, would have been defenseless.

But the American system of breaking Japanese codes worked so perfectly that the United States Navy knew, two weeks in advance, the name of every ship in the Japanese fleet which was steaming to Midway.

Vital Secret Published

Result of that battle is well known. The Japs took a terrific licking and the tide of the Pacific war was turned. No so well known, however, is the manner in which the Chicago Tribune's Stanley Johnston revealed the Navy's secret.

Johnston had been aboard the ill-fated Lexington which sank in the Battle of the Coral Sea, was taken aboard another ship which rushed north to participate in the Battle of Midway. While on this ship he learned that the Navy knew in advance the Japs were preparing to attack.

After landing in the United States where he was not under the Navy's eye, Johnston wrote a story regarding this, giving the complete list of Japanese ships. The Navy immediately hit the ceiling, and Admiral Ernest King, commander of the fleet, called at the White House, demanded that the Chicago Tribune be closed. He pointed out that as a result of the Tribune's story the Japs were sure to change their code and thus we would lose one of our most priceless wartime assets.

Unexplained Mystery

Secretary of the Navy Knox, owner of the competing Chicago Daily News, was against prosecution. So was Roosevelt. He felt prosecution of the Tribune would look like an attack on his severest newspaper critic. The Navy, however, insisted. So William D. Mitchell, Republican Attorney General under Hoover, was selected to present the case to a Chicago grand jury.

What finally happened has never been revealed. In the middle of the grand jury hearing Mitchell suddenly called off the prosecution. To this day no explanation has ever been given as to why a Federal grand jury was convened to indict the Chicago Tribune, but dropped the case like a hot potato.

Democratic Senators now believe that, along with the Amerasia case, the Justice Department should be called upon for an explanation, plus a further explanation of failure to prosecute the Tribune for its December 5, 1941, disclosures of United States mobilization plans in case of war.

Massachusetts Workers Get Higher Wage Rates

Boston, June 16 (U.P.).—Higher minimum wages for some 150,000 office workers in Massachusetts became effective today under an unexpected directive by State Labor Commissioner John J. Del Monte.

A 65-cent an hour minimum wage for experienced workers and 60 cents for inexperienced workers was approved by the State Minimum Wage Commission last week. Previous minimums for the office workers were 60 and 55 cents.

"Keep it under cover..."

"Keep it under cover," said this great maker of men's summer clothes. "My superb quality tropical suits are famous all over the country at the regular advertised price. But if you take out the labels, you can put on a sale that'll rock Washington . . . Here they are. The coolest looking tropicals you've ever seen!"

SALE! FAMOUS MAKE TROPICAL SUITS

Entire Stock of This Nationally Known Brand on Sale at The Hecht Co. Today!

Our kingpin clothing buyer took a reading with his barometer finger and said that Washington men were in the mood for something really big. He promptly burned up cross-country wires until the manufacturer agreed to do things our way. Because this famous suit maker knows that when big diggins are doing, The Hecht Co. does 'em! That when The Hecht Co. pops a sale, things really pop! If you could move that hand you'd recognize the name in a flash. That's why we had to take out the labels. You'd know how superbly the featherweight fabric is blended. Two top-quality rayons that are luxuriously smooth, cool, comfortable; kid mohair for resilience; virgin wool for crease-holding body. What a honey of a suit, and what a price! Remember, nothing removed but the labels. They're the very same suits we've sold up to yesterday at a higher price. Sizes regulars, longs, limited amount of shorts.
